Glad Tidings for Parents and Other Relatives of Children Rescued From the Jaws of Death in Turkey—Mrs.
Flora Stanton Kalk Brings 86 Children and 400 Orphan Girls Through 300 Miles of Turkish Turmoil to Peace and Safety in Syria

Down a road in Palestine, two women were running to tell the good news of a resurrection from death to life on an Easter morning, eighteen hundred and ninety years ago.

Down "Main street" in eighty-six towns of America, women, and men also, will be hurrying during the Easter season of 1923 to share the good news of what to each of them is another resurrection—as the result of rescue by one American woman, a "gold star mother," in Turkey.

By her efforts, twenty-one fathers or mothers, twenty-five brothers or sisters, forty other persons in this country and one in Canada—eighty-six in all—will observe Easter with the knowledge that children whom they mourned as lost in Turkey have been "brought to life."

Mrs. Flora Stanton Kalk, of Omaha, Neb., brought the eighty-six children out through 300 miles of Turkish turmoil and mud with 400 orphan girls, who were from an American orphanage—to peace and safety in Syria. With age—no peace and safety in Syria. With age—no peace and safety in Syria. With age—no peace and safety in Syria.

COUNCIL WILL CONSIDER SALARY ORDINANCE THIS EVENING

Difference of Opinion Among Members

Action on Ordinance to Abolish Public Service Board Will Be Postponed—Other City Hall News

One of the most important items of business to come before the council at this evening's meeting is the salary ordinance, which was passed a few weeks ago by the council and which later was vetoed by Mayor Donovan. There is a difference of opinion among the members of the council as to the final disposition of the measure. Some assert that the ordinance will be passed over the mayor's veto, while others claim that the chief executive will be sustained in his action.

It was reported at city hall this morning that one member of the council, who originally voted in favor of the ordinance, would shift over to the minority and thus kill the measure, as ten votes are required to override the

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27.—Governor Smith today made public a letter replying to United States Senator Simon I. Fess, republican, Ohio, who recently took exception to the action of the New York legislature in memorializing congress for modification of the Volstead act.

"We ask for a reasonable congressional interpretation of what constitutes an intoxicating beverage," was the keynote of the governor's letter, which declared that New York state was not asking laxity in enforcement of the federal prohibition laws.

"We have had illegal traffic in liquors and official corruption," said the governor's letter. "The latter is clearly proven by the brevity of the official life of many that represent the government in the enforcement of the Volstead act and their summary removal or transfer from this district is usually under the shadow of suspicion. Report Daugherty Has Given

NEW YORK, March 27.—Assistant District Attorney Pecora and Police Inspector Coughlin today joined in an active search for Draper M. Daugherty, only son of the attorney general of the United States, to question him concerning reports that he was a friend of Dorothy Keenan, murdered model, and that he might know of a blackmailing ring using her as a decoy.

Daugherty, who served for two years with the British army before America entered the war, and then became a major in the American Expeditionary Force, was quoted by a New York morning newspaper as saying that he knew Miss Keenan well, had visited her apartment several times, and on one occasion had given her a check to pay a bill she told him was pressing.

He began to suspect last Thursday, after receiving a telephone call at a New York club, that he, like the mysterious "Mr. Marshall," identified Saturday as John Kearsley Mitchell, wealthy and socially prominent Philadelphia, was marked for plucking by

JOSEPH DEAN WAS OVCOME BY GAS

As the result of being overcome by gas at 83 C street, about 1.30 o'clock this afternoon, Joseph Dean, aged about 60 years, is now confined to the Corporation hospital, where his condition is considered serious.

The man was discovered by William H. Palmer, who lives in the same house. Smelling gas, he traced it to Dean's room and found a gas jet open and burning. The ambulance was summoned and removed him to the hospital.

As far as could be learned, Dean is a machinist in a local mill. He did not work today, and it is probable that the gas had been turned on for some time. It is said that he is married and has a wife living in Maine.

FRANCE MOURNS "DIVINE SARAH"

Stunned at Passing of Be-

Not Since Death of Victor Hugo Has France Been Stirred so Deeply

Was One of Greatest Ambassadors of French Art and Literature

PARIS, March 27.—(By the Associated Press) All France mourns today, for her well beloved daughter, Sarah Bernhardt, is dead.

Paris is stunned, scarcely believing that she who was regarded as almost immortal in more than one sense of the word, has passed away. It seems not too much to say that not since the death of Victor Hugo, has France been stirred so deeply.

As the academicien D. Freres observes in Figaro, Bernhardt probably shares with Hugo and Pasteur, the distinction of being the most illustrious person in the last hundred years of French history.

It was thus befitting that the public which idolized her and which she, in turn, held so close to her heart, should have lingered reverently in the soft spring night outside the house in

SUDDEN DEATH OF FORMER LOWELL MAN

Joseph F. Costello, a former resident of this city, died suddenly while attending a boxing contest in Mechanics hall, Boston, last evening. The man was stricken with a stroke of apoplexy just prior to the appearance of Johnson and Thompson in the ring, and when medical assistance reached him it was found that he had breathed his last.

Mr. Costello was 45 years of age and made his home at 45 Bremer street, Dorchester. He lived in Lowell several years, during which time he was in the tea business. He was well and favorably known among the boxing fans of the city and at one time was very active in promoting boxing contests. He was married and leaves his wife and several children.

ANOTHER WHITE POLE TO BE MOVED

The white pole at the corner of John and Merrimack streets, on the outward bound track, is to be moved up to the pole directly opposite Wardell's clock within a few days, and people who have been in the habit of waiting for Highland, Pawtucketville, Varnum avenue, Moody street and Broadway cars at this corner will have to walk up Merrimack street just a little farther.

The change has been effected to relieve congestion of both automobiles and electric cars at this point, and was made by the street railway company at the instance of Traffic Supervisor "Buddy" Connors. The corner has always been a bad one, but since the installation of the loop for cars going to Centralville, conditions have steadily become worse, and it is hoped that this change will relieve considerable of the congestion that has been the rule at the important corner.

Thomas J. Sayers Appointed Head of Lowell Division to Succeed Charles E. Whalen—Newly Appointed Official is Son of the Late Thomas Sayers,

Lowell Street Railway

THOMAS J. SAYERS

Thomas J. Sayers, for the past 22 years an employee of the local street railway, has been appointed superintendent of the Lowell division to succeed Charles E. Whalen, who resigned early in January of this year, and will assume his duties tomorrow. Mr. Sayers has been car house foreman for several years and his appointment as superintendent will prove exceptionally popular with the car operators, the track men, and the repair men with whom he has worked.

Since Mr. Whalen's retirement, Supt. Albert E. Myers of the Chelsea division of the Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co. has been filling the job here in Lowell, but at the time of his appointment, Jan. 6, he was sent here for two months only and he will return to Chelsea.

Mr. Sayers is still recuperating from a severe attack of appendicitis which necessitated an operation and the doctors state that it was only an unusually strong constitution which carried him through his illness, as he was unconscious for 17 days at one time. He entered the hospital on December 24, and was not discharged until March 9 of this year.

MAN CHARGED WITH OPERATING AUTO WHILE INTOXICATED GETS DIRECT SENTENCE

In accordance with recent instructions issued by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank Goodwin, Judge Enright today imposed a direct sentence of two months to the house of correction on Philip Vallancourt of Springfield for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. In the majority of similar cases previous to this time, the court was inclined to extend leniency to such misdemeanors, fines being imposed as a general rule. Vallancourt appealed the sentence this morning and also a fine of $5 on a finding of guilty to a charge of drunkenness. His companion, Raymond E. Penny of Hudson, had a drunkenness charge placed on file.

The pair were arrested in Kearney square last night by Officers Kivlan and Maroney after the former had narrowly escaped being struck by the machine which Vallancourt was operating. Suspecting something wrong, Officer Kivlan called Officer Maroney, who drove the machine to the police station and placed the occupants under arrest.

In imposing sentence, Judge Enright stated that civil satisfaction in such cases would hereafter have no consideration with him. Vallancourt's bonds were fixed at $500 for his appearance in the superior court the first Monday in April.

PICKPOCKETS HAVE BEEN REAPING HARVEST HERE—MANY WOMEN LOSE THEIR POCKETBOOKS

That the recent complaints of several Lowell women to the effect that pickpockets are operating with considerable success in this city of late, have some foundation in fact, is evident from the mysterious disappearance of money and valuables, said to have been extracted from the pockets of Saturday shoppers in the downtown district last week. Although Captain David Petrie of the local criminal investigation bureau suspects that the recent revival of the sleight-of-hand game in this city is purely the work of amateur, probably boys, the many complaints which have reached

Here Comes the Easter Bride!

This is just a story—as old as the hills—yet ever new—a story about a girl named Mary who got married and lived happily ever afterwards.

MARY bought her wedding invitations at our Stationery Shop on the street floor. She selected Non Plate Engraving because it meant a big saving in cost and every cent counts when one gets married!

HER mother's loving hands helped her make her wedding gown of Bridal Satin and Chantilly lace. She purchased this beautiful material in the dress goods section and it cost her $3.98 a yard. The lace came from our lace section and while Chantilly is marked at various prices, Mary finally decided on one at $4.98 a yard.

BY the way—she used a Standard Pattern No. 3742, size 16. It required just two and five-eighths yards of 36-inch material with one and three-eighths yards of lace.

HER bridal veil which she will treasure in years to come is of plain white silk net. Lovely in its simplicity! Moderate in price! $1.98 the yard.

SHE found a bridal wreath of orange blossoms in our ribbon shop on the street floor. It was just what she wanted. Cost but $2.50.

"VANITY FAIR" Silk Underwear was always Mary's favorite, so it seemed perfectly natural for her to buy Vanity Fair Silken Undergarments for her trousseau. We carry a complete line in our Knit Underwear section on the street floor.

IF Mary cried on her wedding day—no one saw those tears but the tiny square of lace she tucked in her glove.

HER Gloves! Mary was so particular about them. She decided on a pair of fine French kid, 16 button length, priced $6.00.

MARY selected the finest of silk hose in our Hosiery shop. Seems as if she bought at least three dozen in black, grey, brown and white. But one can't have too many stockings!

MARY'S path in married life is going to be a joyous one for she is going to walk happily in her Queen Quality Shoes. Prices on Queen Quality shoes are $7.00 and $7.50.

HER Corsets of silk broche were selected in our Corset Shop on the second floor. Experienced corsetiers properly fit you to the corset that your figure requires.

WHEN Mary went on her honeymoon she wore a beautiful three-piece suit of navy twill cord and carried a Cape of Lustrous that had a decidedly luxurious air. Needless to say she bought both the suit and cape in our Fashion Section—second floor.

I COULD tell you more about Mary's clothes—her shoes, her stockings, her hat, her handkerchiefs, her umbrella, her gloves, her luggage, about the beautiful gifts she received—and most of these came from the Bon Marche.)

But I'm not going to. She lived happily ever afterwards! That's all.

MITCHELL AND WIFE MEET

Man Who Was Mysterious "Mr. Marshall" Greets Wife at Washington Depot

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Kearney Mitchell, the Philadelphia millionaire, who was the mysterious "Mr. Marshall" of the Keenan murder case in New York, met his wife here today for their first interview since his connection with the case became publicly known.

The meeting took place at the Union station upon the arrival of Mitchell from Florida on the private car of his father, E. T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia. As he came up the steps of the car, she appeared in the doorway, and held out both her hands to him. They then disappeared inside the car which, later in the day was to resume its journey northward.

Mr. Mitchell, who had kept his presence in Washington carefully concealed, reached the station just before the Florida train arrived. He would not talk to newspapermen.

It was said the car probably would be attached to some train leaving later in the day and that there should probably go either to the Mitchell home in Philadelphia or to the Stotesbury country place near Baltimore.

A secretary and another man, said to be Mitchell's attorney, accompanied him when he met the train. As the private car came to a standstill, Mr. Stotesbury alighted, shook hands with his son-in-law, and without a word escorted him to the platform to meet Mrs. Mitchell.

Stotesbury Ignores Papers

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 27.—E. T. Stotesbury, father-in-law of J. K. Mitchell, identified in the Dorothy Keenan slaying case in New York, refused to read newspaper clippings in connection with the case last yesterday when he passed through Savannah on his return trip to the north escorted by his daughter, Mrs. Mitchell.

Mrs. Mitchell also declined to discuss the case or read the clippings.

AUTOMOBILE STOLEN

An automobile, the property of John W. Stotesbury, of 33 E. Boston road, was stolen from in front of the German-American club on Main street, late last night. This car later crashed into one driven by Joseph J. Mitchell, 233 Lincoln street, on Lincoln street and both cars were badly damaged. The driver of the stolen car ran away from the scene of the accident and has not yet been found.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly be without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, breaks the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Appointment of Captain Herbert Hartley as master of the Levathan, largest American ship, has been announced by the shipping board.

today concerning Mr. Sayers' appointment, stated that Mr. Sayers was a native of Lowell, was educated in the Lowell schools and had been connected with the local street railway company for the past 21 years, and previous to his appointment as superintendent had been operating for many years at the Lowell street car barn.

Mr. Sayers is a member of the local lodge of Elks and has a host of friends who will wish him success in his new position.

Mr. A. E. Myers, who has been acting superintendent pending the appointment of a permanent superintendent, will return to his former position as superintendent of the Chelsea division in accordance with arrangements that were made when he came to Lowell. During the short time that Mr. Sayers has been in Lowell he has shown exceptional ability as a superintendent, having expert knowledge of all of the operating details incidental to the operation of a transportation system, and in returning to his former position he takes with him the best wishes of all of the employees of the Lowell division.

In this case it seems that the position of superintendent is in natural line of succession for Mr. Sayers' father was a starter and superintendent of the Lowell division, holding the superintendent's position from 1903 until 1905, when he left Lowell and went to St. Louis to work for one of the large parking houses there. Mr. Sayers' father, before his work as starter, was a driver on one of the old horse cars that used to jog over our streets.

"Young Tommy," as he is known by the older employees of the road, started with the street railway in 1901 as a waterboy and has since been employed as a pitman, repairing cars, as a starter in the square, as an inspector and as car house foreman. The position which he was filling until his illness overcame him. He was on duty in the square with Walter Hickey, and became well known to the thousands of patrons of the electric cars through his unflinching courtesy and attention to their demands while on that job. As car house foreman he had charge of the bookkeeping of cars, and made up the lists of work for the spare men.

Mr. Albert E. Myers, who has been temporary superintendent in Lowell, will return to Chelsea within a week. Since his arrival here he has done much to keep the cars going through one of the worst winters that Lowell has encountered since the advent of electric cars. Since his arrival in Lowell he has truthfully stated that no line has been tied up completely for any length of time, and he has, during the severe snow storms, gone out on the plows where traffic was tied up and superintended the clearing of the tracks. Many truck drivers, coming from Lowell to Lawrence or Boston, will recall to him for his fair treatment of them and the work he has done in getting them out of the track, with the aid of snow-plows when it seemed that otherwise they would be frozen in for the winter. It is one of the quiet, unobtrusive type of men and his leaving will be regretted by many who knew him recently and by those who worked with him on the local division in the years prior to 1905. One of the odd features of Mr. Sayers' appointment here is that Mr. Myers was a starter on the Lowell division when Mr. Sayers' father was superintendent.

CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

Catherine Beattie, who was found guilty of larceny in the district court yesterday, and whose case was continued to await the arrival of her brother from Woburn, was today sentenced to the Massachusetts Reformatory for Women. She is alleged to have stolen a fur coat, dress, watch, chain and other articles from a local lodging house. When arrested, she gave the name of Doris Hall.

Leo P. McCormack, 17, charged with the larceny of a bicycle, the property of David Ray, was found guilty of the charge and bonds fixed at $500 for his appearance for sentence tomorrow. McCormack was arrested soon after the complaint was issued and he took the bicycle to look for work in New Hampshire. When the officers went to arrest him this morning, he attempted to escape by jumping from a window, but was taken into custody before he could effect a getaway.

Catherine Emmott pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was given a sentence of three months to the house of correction, suspended for a year. Officer Charles Hamilton testified that the woman had neglected her household and forced her boy to steal in order to obtain food. She was told that her next appearance would net her a direct sentence.

Pickpockets Active in Lowell

The sun and the circumstances surrounding them tend to substantiate the theory that experienced and skilled artists are engaged in the work.

It has been consistently rumored that there are a dozen or more pickpockets in Lowell. The majority of them are local comfortable circumstances. were relieved of their pocketbooks in the shopping area last Saturday afternoon. The pickpocketing was reported of a mill operative who, after receiving her hard-earned week's wages, entered a Mercantile street department store for the purpose of purchasing household and other essentials and when she went to pay the clerk, found that her purse and its contents were missing. Realizing that she had been victimized, the woman broke down under the thought that her week's labor had been lost. Several other similar incidents have been brought to light in the past few weeks and while in some cases the loss may be attributed to carelessness, the regular occurrence of professional pickpocketing is indicative of a serious situation on the part of the Kully person or persons.

To discourage the practice as much as possible, or at least to make the operation all the more difficult, local police authorities wish to warn the women of Lowell to exercise care in placing their money. There have been instances where the extraction of purses was somewhat simplified in view of the fact that some women have allowed their pocketbooks to protrude from their coat pockets in a very conspicuous manner. It is imperative, especially at this season of the year when department and other stores are thronged with Easter shoppers, that people use more than ordinary discretion in guarding their valuables. It is requested by the police that any future losses be reported to the proper authorities immediately.

Mayor's veto and by the shifting of this particular councilor the vote would stand nine to six and thereby the ordinance would be killed.

From other quarters it was learned that the shifting of one councilor to the minority side will not affect the vote any, for those in favor of the ordinance feel certain that they will be able to swing one vote from the minority to the majority. Be that as it may, the ordinance will be brought up for discussion again tonight and unless something unforeseen happens, final action will be taken.

JEWELERS' ORDINANCE

Another matter to be called to the attention of the council this evening is the ordinance recently filed with the city clerk by Councilor Daly, relative to the prohibiting of auction sales of old gold, silver, etc., or, in other words, a measure which is aimed at inducing vendors who come here from other cities to conduct auction sales of cheap jewelry. The ordinance will be read and allowed to follow its course, that is, will be referred to the committee on ordinances.

Councilor Daly will request that a representative of the Lowell Retail Jewelers' association be invited to appear before the council and give his views on the matter.

PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD

Because of an oversight, the ordinance calling for the creation of various city departments, presented by Councilor Daly, which was scheduled to come up for action this evening, will have to be over until the next meeting. This ordinance, in plain words, is for the abolition of the public service board. It was presented at the council some time ago and referred to the committee on ordinances which two weeks ago reported it adversely. Mr. Daly then requested and the request was granted, that the city clerk be instructed to advertise it with the understanding that it would be brought up again before the council for consideration. It was learned today that through an oversight the ordinance was not advertised and as a result no action will be taken this evening.

LISTING BOARD BUDGET

The supplementary budget for the listing board, which is now being prepared by the members will be ready for this evening's meeting, so it was stated this morning. Although the exact figures of the budget were not given out, it is said the amount will be in the vicinity of $500. This will include $350 for increases in salaries for the members of the board as provided by the bill recently enacted by the legislature.

the legislature; the sum of $400, originally called for by the assessors for the assessment of poll taxes, and which was cancelled by the budget and audit commission and the mayor, as well as extra money for clerical force and equipment.

The members of the board conferred with the board of assessors yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of securing data relative to the listing of polls. The assessors cheerfully supplied the board with general information concerning the work and also supplied them with copies of cards and other materials used by the assistant assessors in the performance of their duties. The polls will be listed this morning that in all probability two officers will be detailed for each precinct and in larger districts three. The officers will start on their new work next Monday, under the supervision of the chief of police, who is chairman of the listing board.

STREET DEPARTMENT

There is no doubt that the spring season has opened, for tomorrow morning Supt. Doherty of the street department will put a gang of men at work on taking down the storm guards on local bridges. The bridges that have storm guards are the Central street, Moody street, Pawtucket and Church street. It is expected it will take the men about four days to do the work. The superintendent has also given orders to put away all the skeletons of the department for the summer and he does not anticipate any more snow this season.

FIGHT HAS JUST BEGUN

Piggly Wiggly Head De-nounces "Wall Street" for "Unethical Methods"

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 27.—Clarence Saunders, president of Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., whose stock has been the centre of a New York stock exchange sensation since its fluctuations terminated a week ago in catching short sellers shy approximately 25,000 shares, today was checking on the time the shares delivered in settlement were acquired by brokers making the deliveries.

Saunders proposed to bring suits against "each of the brokers who was at default" and against the New York stock exchange.

"One of the allegations of my suit," he said, "will be that I was not delivered the stock which was due me. I claim that no stock purchased after March 20 was a good and valid delivery of stock against my purchases prior to that time, and, in addition thereto, I will sue the New York stock exchange for conspiracy."

Saunders again denounced the exchange and "Wall Street" for what he termed "trickery and unethical methods" and declared: "The fight has just begun."

The exchange in a formal reply asserted that it lived up to all its laws and to its contracts with Mr. Saunders and charged that the president of the grocery company had dealt unfairly with it. In addition it declared the removal of Piggly Wiggly stock from the trading list and suspension of the exchange rules had averted demoralization of the whole stock market.

Authorities to See Daugherty blackmailers, he was quoted as saying.

This call, he said, came from a man who had been close to Miss Keenan. The speaker, he said, asked him how about the job he had promised to get him in the department of justice of which Attorney General Daugherty is the head.

Two Theories Advanced
NEW YORK, March 27.—Two theories backgrounded efforts of the police today to unravel the growing mystery of the murder of Dorothy Keenan.

The first was that of a man intent on blackmailing the girl to obtain an endearing letter written to her from Palm Beach by John Kearney Mitchell, the prominent Philadelphia, who was known until Saturday as "Mr. Marshall of Boston."

The second was that a robber entered Miss Keenan's fifth street apartment and chloroformed her to get her jewels and furs and escaped with the loot, ignorant that he had murdered the woman.

Every effort was being directed to find either the jewelry or the furs, for, whether thief or blackmailer, the individual who took them is believed to have killed Miss Keenan.

Fredrick E. Goldsmith, attorney for Albert E. Guimares, "the man in the fur coat," challenged the authorities to connect his client with either the murder or the supposed blackmailing scheme.

POPE MOVES TO SAVE PRELATES

Vatican Deeply Affected by Death Sentences Passed Upon Church Heads

Report Pope Exerting His Personal Influence to Save Lives of Prelates

ROME, March 27.—(By the Associated Press) The Vatican is deeply affected by the death sentences passed upon Archbishop Zepiak and Monsignor Hutcheson in Moscow, and it is understood Pope Pius is exerting his personal influence to save the lives of the prelates.

When the cases came up recently the Holy See intervened its good offices through the Russian minister here, and the soviet government responded that the accused Catholics would be tried with perfect "dispassionateness."

The extremity to which the court went in imposing penalties thus has caused the greatest disappointment.

Poland Takes Action
WARSAW, March 27.—When Premier Sikorski learned that Archbishop Zepiak, head of the Roman Catholic church in Russia and the 16 priests tried with him had been found guilty by the Moscow court, he sent for Leonid Obolenski, the soviet minister to Poland, and informed him that the Polish government and population observed with anxiety the soviet attitude toward the Catholic church, and the Polish minority.

The premier asserted that representatives of the Russian government had assured the Polish minister at Moscow that the trial was only a formality without importance.

"The soviet judicial authorities," he continued, "left the condemned men at complete liberty for an entire year, arresting them only 10 days ago. Then they pronounced the death sentence to be executed within 72 hours. The court arguments showed the trial to be purely political."

"Acting not only as the head of the Polish government but as the spokesman of the civilized world, which indignantly condemns this unprecedented act of flagrant violation of liberty of conscience and the elementary rights of citizens, I direct the soviet government's attention to the responsibility it would assume by execution of the sentence."

Premier Sikorski asked M. Obolenski to convey this declaration to the soviet government immediately.

Modification of Volstead Act

smuggling of whiskey across the Canadian border has become a notorious abuse.

"People who for years were used to a harmless glass of beer have been put upon a whiskey diet. The federal and the state governments with all their power are unable to stop the abuse. It is a matter of common knowledge that in a state as big as New York, the police force required for proper enforcement would be entirely beyond the means of the people."

"I am impressed by the figures that you give of the vote in your own state on 2.75 per cent beer, as well as the vote of the states of Michigan and California. Why not settle the question for all time and provide for that vote in every state, with congress fixing 2.75 per cent, as a maximum alcoholic content and allowing the popular vote to fix the minimum? That, surely, is democratic government."

U. S. DELEGATES LEAVE ROME

Men Who Attended Congress of International Chamber of Commerce Start Home

Elbert H. Gary Had Talk With Hugo Stinnes, the German Industrial Magnate

ROME, March 27.—(By the Associated Press) The American delegates to the congress of the International chamber of commerce, which closed here Saturday have now nearly all left Rome. Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation who had a talk with Hugo Stinnes, the German industrial magnate during the latter's brief visit here, just after the close of the conference, went to Naples yesterday and sailed thence for Spain.

Herr Stinnes left Rome last evening after an exchange of views with Signor Finzi, under-secretary of the interior, acting for Premier Mussolini, and passed through Bologna today on his way back to Berlin.

While in Rome Herr Stinnes stopped at the same hotel at which the American delegates to the chamber of commerce congress were guests. The local press considers his coming was due to the presence of so many influential figures of the commercial and financial world, the American especially, and was particularly interested in the American suggestion for the calling of an international economic conference with a view to solving the reparations, inter-allied debt and stabilization of exchange questions. He is said to have expressed the belief that such a conference should be held in the United States as best adapted for the gathering because of its remoteness from the influence of the various conflicting European interests.

Herr Stinnes is reported to have seen Pope Pius and Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, but to have failed in his efforts to confer with Premier Mussolini. The latter delegating Signor Finzi to meet the German capitalist. The premier himself went to Milan last night for conferences of an international character.

In Massachusetts, 18 parents, brothers or sisters, aunts and uncles are getting "resurrection" good news from Mrs. Kalk about brown-eyed or blue-eyed little girls from whom they had been separated four to six years.

When Mrs. Kalk crashed down on the near east in 1914, it shut the door of exit from Turkey upon a majority of the eighty-six children. They were about to sail with their mothers to join the fathers who had preceded them to this country in the effort to set up another home in a free land. In the experiences which followed, the mothers, after long sacrifices to keep the children alive, did not survive and the girls were gathered up by the Americans. In other cases, according to Mrs. Kalk, the pendulum of Turkish movements, through swept minority Christians through snowy winters and through parched areas by summer in forced removals separated the children from their parents. The fathers and brothers were drawn into the Turkish army and a few of the mothers escaped, giving the children up for lost after fruitless searches.

Remnants of the eighty-six long-separated girls and relatives may be expected by June, according to near east relief officials in Syria, as rapidly as the parents or others provide the children with proper affidavits and funds for passage. It may be that a party of them will be sent to the happy relatives at one time.

About half of the children are having their eyes treated daily to be rid of the trachoma which they got in the

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET
A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Jarbo Compound and 1/2 ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—Adv.

the Boulevard Pereire, where she had lived for 33 years, sharing the vigil with the family within. After midnight, when the theatre was closed, came the people of the stage to pay tribute to their illustrious comrade. Among them were Sacha Guitry, the playwright, who had a filial respect for Bernhardt, Cecile Sorel, Rachel Boyer and a host of other stars. Included in the number also was James Hackett, who, according to Bernhardt, called President Harding requesting him to announce officially to the people of the United States, the death of "the greatest artist in the world."

Bernhardt lies on her bed, covered by the flowers she loved so well. Tall candles burn at either side and at the foot of her couch, and in accordance with French custom, a crucifix and a bowl of holy water stand on a little table nearby.

The family this morning was still overcome with grief to discuss the funeral arrangements. Bernhardt occasionally expressed the desire to be buried within the grounds of her home at Belle Island, a romantic spot atop storm-torn cliffs that overlook the Atlantic. However, it has not yet been decided whether she will be laid to rest there or in the family tomb in Pere La Chaise cemetery, Paris.

In any event there will be an impressive ceremony in Paris on either Thursday or Friday, and there is a strong sentiment in favor of holding this at the expense of the nation. As an officer of the Legion of Honor, Mme. Bernhardt is entitled to burial with military honors, but the public feels that she should be interred with the pomp befitting her incalculable services to French art.

It later was arranged that the body should lie in state at the home beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The funeral probably will be held at the church of St. Francis de Sales, but inasmuch as this is "the week of the dead" preceding Easter, there can be no high mass.

Mme. Bernhardt's most valuable effects are being taken out of the house by her son, Maurice, and sent elsewhere for safe keeping.

Chamber Filled With Flowers

PARIS, March 27.—(By the Associated Press) The chamber in which Bernhardt's body lies is already filled with flowers brought by hundreds of her admirers. The first bunch of lilies was placed on the bed in the early morning by her granddaughter. Alho Loutil, the great actress' close friend for many years, remarked that in death she had "recovered the beauty of her youth."

"Her expression," he added, "is one of peace."

Popular in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Mar. 27.—Because of the large French speaking population here, there probably was no city in America where Sarah Bernhardt was more popular than in New Orleans.

During her last engagement here she took part in a great parade arranged by the Liberty loan campaign committee. When the parade started rain threatened. Her physician advised against the actress participating, but Bernhardt insisted, remarking: "My soldiers in France are standing knee deep in blood and grime and I shall ride in the parade if no one else does."

REMARKABLE CAREER
Madame Sarah Bernhardt, who at 70 years of age seemed still a girl, was known to every hand as "the world's greatest actress." What discussion might have been to this estimate, and however far her detractors ventured in their attempts to minimize her right to that distinction, the numberless admirers of the "divine Sarah" remained convinced that never before had the stage produced a more capable of soaring to such heights in the realm of emotional drama.

The work of Mme. Bernhardt was best where a theme afforded the greatest opportunity for a display of her powerful emotions. At the height of her career in this form of acting, based principally on love, hate and jealousy, she held the preeminent place now dedicated to character delineation, and Bernhardt never was surpassed, her critics say, in this emotional school. Hundreds of parts she either revived or created to suit herself, seldom being content to act them as interpreted by others.

Praised by Three Generations
Three generations have praised and even worshipped the art of Bernhardt, and hundreds of thousands of people around the world have thronged to see and marvel at her acting without understanding the French language, which she invariably employed upon the stage. Once, in Rio de Janeiro, she was called before the curtain more than twenty times by a wildly enthusiastic audience, and many times in other parts of the world, she was obliged to answer scores of curtain calls at a single performance.

The long life-story of Bernhardt is almost legendary. Closely woven with dramatic incident, off as well as on the stage, it was being told by herself in a lengthy volume published many years ago, and, as one of her critics has said, "through the pages of the book peers the face of a woman, a little tired, weary of her own reputation, and blessed with more than her share of the vanities of her sex." As she and others have told the story, it is summed up here:

Born Oct. 22, 1847
The date of her birth, the record of which was destroyed in the flames of the commune in Paris, was commonly accepted as October 22, 1847. Her mother was Dutch and Jewish, and her natural father a French official.

As a child Bernhardt spent much of her time with relatives in Paris, and at the age of 12 was sent to the Grand Champ convent, Versailles, where she made her debut in a little miracle play given by the children. Even at this early age, the pale and sickly child is said to have displayed

PRICE OF TICKETS JARS LOWELL VETERANS

Lowell war veterans and present local national guard organizations are today wondering whether the April benefit testimonial to be tendered to John Ryan state armorer in Lawrence, is going to be a millionaire's parade, all gold lace and fancy trimmings, or just a good-time celebration in honor of one of the best armors ever bred in old New England.

The matter that is troubling Lowell members of the state military line today is the price of tickets for the Ryan banquet, to be tendered to the popular veteran armorer at the Lawrence armory on the night of April 12. Three dollars are demanded from Lawrence militiamen and Lowell guardsmen, also. And an appeal is being sent out for even more money than that, if the boys down this way

FEELING OF SECURITY

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

That three-dollar banquet price doesn't attract Lowell militiamen worth a cent. A number of them today said if Ryan were a Lowell man, for instance—well, that would be different. Few can understand just why it is that the Ryan banquet needs to cost three bones, as they put it, and then have the Lawrence committee solicit additional contributions of money besides. And it costs something to go to Lawrence and return, too.

Over at the armory on Westford street today, Armorer Gilbert W. Hunt read and re-read his invitation and declared bluntly that it would prove a costly trip to honor Brother Ryan, who is a friend of his. Mr. Hunt considered the Lawrence celebration as one that promises to be a costly one, considering the amount of ardent citizenship, cards, letters of invitations and return two-cent envelopes being forwarded Lowell-ward this week.

Numerous Lowell soldiers of the line are enroute when they declare they are not going down the river on the night of April 12. They fail to see any good-fellowship in a dinner that is to cost three dollars and then some besides.

A report that "all the armors of the state of Massachusetts" were to gather in regular convention in Lawrence on the Ryan jubilee (it is Ryan's thirtieth year as regular armorer of the line, by the way), was stamped as absolutely untrue, at Lowell armory today. One report also had it that a "feature of the big evening was to be the assembly of the armors of all state military buildings, the corps making its first appearance as state post quartermaster-sergeants and receiving the old title of the M. V. M."

According to the news tip that Mr. Hunt doesn't place any credence in today, the "armors" corps, whatever that really means, will turn out in the uniform of post quartermaster-sergeants and "be under the command of Brig.-Gen. Cutting, armorer of the great Commonwealth armory, Boston."

There's really no such thing, Mr. Hunt said, today.

Today carefully printed circulars were being received in the mail of Lowell soldier boys, asking for banquet ticket money and soliciting subscriptions "so far as desired." Armorer Hunt is thinking seriously of framing

SPRING TONIC THAT GIVES YOU STRENGTH

Mrs. MacCormack Says She Noticed Improvement as Soon as She Tried It

As spring approaches a tonic for the blood is needed by many people who feel tired, languid and lacking in strength and ambition. When the blood is made rich and red it carries renewed life to every tissue and organ of the body, revitalizes the nerves, increases the appetite, strengthens the digestion, brings color to the cheeks and lips, in fact it tones up the entire system.

Many of the minor troubles, things that we worry about and that take the joy out of living, disappear when the blood is replaced with good red blood. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are so strongly recommended for anemia and neurasthenia. They are a tonic for both the blood and the nerves.

"I felt better after I took my first box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and could notice that my strength was returning." This is the enthusiastic statement of Mrs. Margaret MacCormack, of No. 237 Park street, Dorchester, Mass., who from girlhood had been a sufferer from anemia, or thin blood. "I had always been delicate," she says, "and my blood was thin. I always felt weak and miserable. My digestion was not good and I was subject to pains in the stomach. My appetite was tickle and I had headaches a great deal of the time."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills gave me a better appetite and strengthened my digestion. They corrected the cause of my headaches and gave me strength and vigor. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a very reliable remedy and am glad to recommend them."

The lowering of the tone of the system which results from thin blood is easy to recognize. Finest blood is always present, a tendency to perspire and fatigue easily, ringing in the ears, black spots passing before the eyes, weak back, dizziness, waterfalls and unrefreshing sleep. These conditions Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will correct.

A valuable booklet, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free upon request. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, sixty cents per box, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.—Adv.

It, but in the meantime is not making any promises or actual refusals.

The circulars give a brief history of Armorer Ryan and his deeds and cover the work he has performed for 30 years in the Lawrence military headquarters. He is given credit for having acted in his capacity as armorer "in four wars," and also with aiding in securing recruits for war and equipping them, as well as providing many things for the warriors' comforts both at home and abroad.

The names on the committee handling the Lawrence testimonial are sure to make it a successful affair if the banquet tickets sell well, but just how many Lowell soldiers will "come up" and go down the river to celebrate with Ryan sympathizers, remains a problem that Armorer Hunt, just for instance, isn't going to try and solve for the present.

CUSTODIAN FOR THE AUDITORIUM

Owing to the fact that Mayor Donovan was out of town last night, the Auditorium trustees took no action at their meeting as to the appointment of a permanent custodian for the Auditorium. Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan, city solicitor, requested for the mayor that action be deferred, and out of courtesy to the mayor, the trustees did not take up the matter at all.

A letter from John C. Gilbert, secretary of the civil service commission, was read by the chairman of the board, Charles H. Hobson. In this letter an extension of time from March 22nd to April 5 has been granted for the final day on which an appointment in custodian may be made, to comply with civil service requirements. In order to keep within this ruling the appointment will have to be made at the next meeting of the trustees, next Monday evening.

The following parties were granted dates for the use of the Auditorium: Merrimack Valley Coal Dealers' Association, Liberty hall, March 28; Abraham Hirtzweil, blind violinist, Auditorium, April 24; Miss Blanche Lorin, reception to pupils, May 16, Auditorium; Lowell Driving Club, May 17.

TOMATO SAUCE

By BERTHA E. SHANLEIGH (of Columbia University.)

Probably no sauce is used more often or with more satisfying results than a tomato sauce.

Of course one made with some meat stock is richer and better flavored, but with plenty of seasoning a good one can be made without stock. Such, for instance, is this:

Prepare two cups tomatoes, one small onion (thinly sliced), two tablespoons butter, one fat, two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon each of sugar and salt, one whole clove, one-half teaspoon peppercorns, a small piece of bayleaf and two tablespoons chopped celery, or instead of the celery have one-half teaspoon celery salt, a sprig of parsley and one-eighth teaspoon thyme.

Fry the onion in the bacon fat, add flour and brown. Then add tomatoes and seasonings and cook slowly 20 minutes. Strain, rubbing every bit of pulp through the sieve. Season more to taste and serve.

SULPHUR CLEARS UP ROUGH OR RED SKIN

Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist

Any breaking out of the skin, even if it is itching, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Sulphur. Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist, because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Sufferers from skin troubles should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like solid cream.—Adv.

SIR JAMES DEWAR, NOTED SCIENTIST, IS DEAD

LONDON, March 27.—Sir James Dewar, the noted scientist, died today. Sir James Dewar, a prominent British chemist, was the co-inventor with Sir Frederick Abel of cordite, the smokeless powder adopted by the government. He also brought forward the Dewar flask, popularly known as the Thermos flask. His contributions to chemical knowledge received recognition from scientific societies in England, the United States, France, Italy and Germany. He was in his 81st year.

CREAM WILL CLEAR A STUFFED-UP HEAD

Instantly Opens Every Air Passage—Clears Throat, Too

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed because of nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure antiseptic cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing and healing swollen, inflamed membranes and you get instant relief.

Try this. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Your clogged nostrils open right up; your head is clear; no more hawking or snuffing. Count fifty. All the stuffiness, dryness, struggling for breath is gone. You feel fine.—Adv.

INGROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

A few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so softens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail that it can turn naturally outward almost overnight.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.—Adv.

SCIBELLI GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

SPRINGFIELD, March 27.—Eugene Scibelli, indicted for the murder of Antonia Bonavita in this city Dec. 13, 1920, pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter in superior court today on agreement of court and counsel, and Judge Thayer postponed sentence. Scibelli and Bonavita quarreled over Bonavita's wife, whom Scibelli had lured by threats to desert her husband. Scibelli and the woman lived in various places until she left him. Scibelli was arrested about a year after the killing in Jersey City, N. J.

UNIFICATION OF CHURCHES

ST. LOUIS, March 27.—Steps toward unification of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church, South, were expected to be taken at a meeting today of a committee composed of two bishops, three ministers and three laymen from each division of the church.

Members of the committee declared that unification was not assured, although it was estimated that the two churches would be operating under the same government by 1927.

The northern church holds its next general conference in 1924, and the southern division in 1925.

Launching of a ship is surrounded by sailors with many superstitions. If the launching is a success, the ship goes to sea with a crew free of misgivings. A girl launches her social ship when she makes her debut. If it be successful, her social career has received a most desirable impulse. Whether it's a complete success or a partial failure, depends more on her personal conduct than any other feature.

THE DEBUTANTE

1: A debut may be made at a ball, afternoon tea with dancing, small dance, small tea, without music or simply by issuance of her mother's visiting card with the daughter's engraved below her own.

2: At a ball each guest shakes hands with the debutante and she should receive as long as they continue to arrive.

3: The debutante's supper partner is one who has spoken for the privilege weeks or months in advance of the event.

4: The debutante must dance well of she had better stay away from balls or dances, and exploit her other abilities, such as being able to play a good hand at bridge or a good game of golf.

5: The debutante should remember that it's folly to try to do anything socially unless one can do it well.

It's bad manners for a young woman ever to put her hand on a man, except in dancing or in taking the arm of a wedding usher or a dinner or supper partner.

BECOME CITIZENS WITH LABOR BUREAU AID

WASHINGTON, March 27.—More than 2,500,000 aliens eligible for American naturalization already have been directed to citizenship training classes established by local school authorities throughout the United States in co-operation with the bureau of naturalization of the department of labor. The classes are conducted at night and enable the aliens not only to obtain free educational training necessary for approval of their citizenship petitions, but also to get information that will lead them to better jobs, higher pay and improved living conditions.

The bureau has established a service through which candidates for citizenship are invited to attend the classes provided by local authorities for their instruction, and their names and addresses also are forwarded to the public school officials. The number of foreign residents thus reached, it is said, is necessarily limited to those who have declared their intention to become citizens, since the labor department lacks the names and addresses of those who have not filed petitions. It is believed, nevertheless, that free instruction facilities have been made available to many others through measures taken by local Americanization organizations, Boy Scouts, Young Men's Christian associations, chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution and other patriotic and civic societies.

Cards giving the records of the aliens attending the classes, bureau officials declare, add to the value of the work from a public viewpoint in that they give a basis for complete community surveys to determine needs in Americanization work.

The bureau receives almost daily letters from candidates for citizenship and Americanization workers praising the service, and also gets a number of reports on the work of allies taking advantage of the courses. Some of these reports, it is said, show the progress made by candidates over 40 years of age who had resided in this country many years without taking steps to become citizens.

SWEDEN CONSIDERS BILL TO AID WOMEN

STOCKHOLM, March 27.—The latest step in the achievement of political equality between women and men in Sweden is the renewed submission of a bill to the riksdag providing that women shall be admitted on an equal footing with men to all governmental posts, including the consular and diplomatic service, but excluding the army and navy, and certain other positions, such as those of officials in prisons or in asylums for inebriates. It also provides that women may be ordained ministers of the church and may be installed as such in any congregation where there is at least one man serving as pastor. One member of the committee which drafted the bill held that only unmarried women should be allowed to preach, but no such provision was adopted.

When this bill was submitted to last year's riksdag it was passed in principle by the second chamber and was lost in the first chamber by being only three votes short of the necessary majority. It is considered likely that it will pass of this session.

Sweden was one of the first nations in the world to allow women in its national law-making body, and her feminists can now boast of four women in the second chamber and one woman in the first chamber of the riksdag.

SUMMER PROCKES

Summer dresses of voile are trimmed with hemstitching and embroidery in delicate colors. They are usually cut in one piece and held in about the waist with elastic.

Recent visitors to the palace represent him as being eager to give up the lonely and uncertain job of king. But he is too well aware of the fact that any such action would probably lose the throne to the present royal family, which is of Danish-German-Russian origin. The next in line of succession to the kingship is young Prince Paul. But many persons believe George will be Greece's last sovereign, as a noticeable sentiment for a republic is developing among the Greek people.

Greece, indeed, is so stunned and prostrated by recent events that she is rather indifferent as to who shall take the reins of government. The people seem willing to give the present revolutionary government the fullest opportunity of getting Greece out of the mire of commercial, military and national prostration. But they are not at all sure that the committee will be equal to its enormous and difficult task. They are also willing to continue George as their king so long as he does not go beyond his constitutional limitations, and avoids the fatal foreign alliances of his father, the late King Constantine.

Greatest of all Greece's hopes is a loan from the United States. Without this assistance she can hardly rehabilitate her ruined fortunes, her shattered army, her tottering economic fabric. Twelve years of intermittent

war, of mal-administration, of unfortunate foreign policies and of continued dynastic changes have left the country and people in a state of despair.

The employment of this huge army of enumerators, said Mr. Marten, was necessitated by the fact that, owing to the illiteracy of the population, the employment of the household as an enumerator of his household was impossible. He told of instances of enumerators being stabbed by suspicious Hindus, who considered the census takers too inquisitive. Some of the natives, on the other hand, resorted to violence when bribery failed to induce the census takers to make false entries showing that the natives enjoyed higher stations in the social scale than was really the case.

The census, Mr. Marten said, showed a gain of 12 per cent over the population of 1911. The average density of population over the whole of India was 177 to the square mile. The maximum density of any province was in Bengal, where there were found to be 688 to the square mile.

A new nightgown made by a famous French designer is made high in the neck with a little turnover collar such as one might expect on a sport blouse. It has short sleeves and is trimmed with double rows of hemstitching and a monogram of generous size.

The rain-making method consists in charging a dielectric (a material that retains an electric charge), such as fine sand, with a static charge, and then sprinkling this sand over the top of a cloud by means of an airplane," said Dr. Moore. "As everyone knows, clouds consist of minute particles of water, a large portion of which are charged. All the particles in the same cloud are charged either negatively or positively and, therefore, as they carry the same sign they repel each other when they come into too close contact. This mitigates against the coalescence of the particles into a size that allows them to fall through the atmosphere in the form of rain. Anything which will dissipate the charge on the particles will help coalescence and, therefore, will assist in precipitation."

already made, but I have read the affidavits of the observers. From these it appears that a single airplane has been able to dissipate a cloud a mile or two long and over 1000 feet deep in a few minutes by using about 100 pounds of charged sand.

"The apparatus which Dr. Warren uses for charging the sand is not by any means perfected, and he is able only to get 12,000 or 14,000 volts on the particles," Dr. Moore continued. "In addition it has not been possible, so far to charge more than a small portion of the sand grains. I see no reason why the voltage cannot be increased, with improved apparatus, up to 30,000 volts or even more, and also why the percentage of charged grains such conditions a still greater effect should be obtained with a given weight of sand."

"The work is still in its initial stages and it is difficult to state definitely its future possibilities. No trials have been made on fog, as the conditions have not been favorable for an airplane to go up in a fog and make the test."

"Fogs are a combination of mist or clouds in contact with the earth, mixed with more or less smoke. Whether it will be more difficult or easier to get rid of such fogs than has been the case with clouds high up in the air, is yet to be determined, but the methods certainly show great promise and justify complete investigation by a satisfactory series of trials with improved apparatus. If fogs can be dissipated, the result would be of tremendous value to cities such as London and San Francisco, besides being of great advantage to the air service in connection with its flying fields."

KING OF GREECE PREY TO GREIFS AND FEARS

ATHENS, March 27.—Americans who have recently visited the palace describe King George as a lonely, disconsolate young man. The utter collapse of the Greek army, the Smyrna catastrophe, the unexampled misery of hundreds of thousands of refugees, the internal convulsions in Greece, the execution of the former cabinet members and the overthrow and later death of his father, King Constantine, have left a deep impress on the youthful monarch. Added to these troubles is the continued delicate health of his wife, Princess Elizabeth of Romania, whose life more than once has been in danger.

The king is closely watched by the revolutionary committee, and all his official acts must have its approval. The latest step of this stern and uncompromising body was to sequester two of the late King Constantine's estates so that they would not fall into the hands of his successor, the present king.

The committee also seized the splendid palace at Corfu built by William Hohenloher, and for many years used by the Greek royal family as a summer home. The palace is now occupied as a hospital by the American Near East Relief organization. The use of the building for the treatment of contagious diseases has greatly grieved the king, and he has appealed to the Americans to secure other quarters.

So many restrictions are put upon the new sovereign by the revolutionary regime that he is little more than a figurehead. The Greek people always have been uncertain and fickle in their political and dynastic leanings, and they seem to be quite indifferent to the young king. As a factor in the affairs of the government, American observers declare, King George is quite negligible. He spends all his time in seclusion at the palace, receiving old friends, handing out decorations and signing documents prepared by the revolutionary government.

Recent visitors to the palace represent him as being eager to give up the lonely and uncertain job of king. But he is too well aware of the fact that any such action would probably lose the throne to the present royal family, which is of Danish-German-Russian origin. The next in line of succession to the kingship is young Prince Paul. CENSUS TAKERS MEET VIOLENCE

LONDON, March 27.—The trials and tribulations of a staff of some 2,000,000 census takers to find out there were approximately 319,000,000 people in India in 1921, have been related by J. Marten, census commissioner for India. The employment of this huge army of enumerators, said Mr. Marten, was necessitated by the fact that, owing to the illiteracy of the population, the employment of the household as an enumerator of his household was impossible. He told of instances of enumerators being stabbed by suspicious Hindus, who considered the census takers too inquisitive. EXPLAINS HOW CLOUDS ARE DRIVEN AWAY

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Rain-making and the dissipation of fogs and clouds by a process invented by Dr. L. Francis Warren is a scientific possibility and the further perfection of apparatus no doubt will prove its feasibility, said Dr. R. H. Moore recently to the Associated Press. Dr. Moore is chief chemist of the United States bureau of mines. While he has not yet had opportunity to see Dr. Warren's apparatus in operation, Dr. Moore has been interested in the method since its inception and has had faith in the soundness of the scientific principle on which it is based.

"The rain-making method consists in charging a dielectric (a material that retains an electric charge), such as fine sand, with a static charge, and then sprinkling this sand over the top of a cloud by means of an airplane," said Dr. Moore. "As everyone knows, clouds consist of minute particles of water, a large portion of which are charged. HONORS PRINCE OF WALES

LONDON, March 27.—The prince of Wales, who for some time has had 15 sets of initials in the wake of his name, now has 16. His latest decoration was created and conferred at the recent dinner of the American university union, at which he was the honor guest. The new initials are O.O.U., which, it was explained by Dr. George E. Maclean, former chancellor of Nebraska university, stand for "one of us."

The prince, described at the banquet by Lady Astor as one of the best Americans she ever knew, told the former college men and women gathered about him that he hoped soon to see a British student resident in each of the 54 colleges in the United States holding membership in the American university union in Europe.

INDUSTRIAL MILITIA WOULD END STRIKES

CHICAGO, March 27.—Trained industrial reserves as a co-ordinate branch of the national defense, thus providing a militia of industry to preserve industrial peace as the militia of arms preserves order, is the cardinal principle of what has become known as the "Rockford Plan" for curbing strikes, according to its author, Prof. Henry Martyn Herrick, associate professor of modern languages at Rockford college.

The plan is described by Professor Herrick as a "challenge to union labor to mend its ways," but Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, characterizes the plan as "impracticable, absurd, a dream and perhaps a nightmare."

"One is strangely impressed with the brilliancy of the new idea of an 'economic reserve' or army to break strikes of organized wage earners. When one seeks to find the sources from which this economic reserve is to be conscripted, one is left in complete darkness and confusion," said Mr. Woll. "Where is he going to find these voluntary strike breakers?"

In outlining his plan, Prof. Herrick states:

"I recalled first a question asked by the acting governor of Illinois at an official of the miners' union during the coal strike.

"May they dig coal for the businists?" was the question. No," replied the official.

"Our defense has been wholly military. We have defended our borders, but not our vital industries. We must supply this lack by making trained industrial reserve a co-ordinate branch of the national defense. The militia of industry will preserve industrial peace as the militia of arms preserve order. It will take but few trained reserves to defend our vital industries such as mining and transportation. Industrial unpreparedness is as inexcusable as military.

"Strikes, to borrow good old medical terms, are either inaudible or malignant. Strikes in vital industries are malignant. The laudable strike in Lincoln's day has become rare. You see therefore why our six million farmers do not strike.

"But to organized labor the strike is the breath of life.

"The government, co-operating with the entire educational system, will offer a brief intensive course in one or more of the vital industries under the new plan. This will add purpose and aim to education and put the citizenship on citizenship. No drafting will be required, for volunteers will flock to the service in allegiance to Uncle Sam, even many from the unions to escape bad leadership.

"Here is the safeguard against socialism. The folly of admitting undesirable aliens to do the work we should do ourselves will be apparent. The Boy Scouts will be ideal pioneers of the new way.

"The plan has made a good start. In Rockford, its power and promise were quickly recognized. It has received attention at the White House and has been placed on file for reference in the department of labor, in the division of conciliation. The plan strikes terror to the heart of the evil-doer."

Mr. Woll, in commenting on the plan, said:

"Prof. Herrick would leave labor free to organize and to strike if it wants to, but he would set up an economic reserve, founded on voluntary conscription, that could be drawn upon whenever and wherever the organized workers demand exercise their refusal to give service to the employing interests.

"This idea is new only in that he would have the state, instead of the private employer, venture into the organization of strikebreaking, by organizing a state organization of strikebreakers under the more elusive term of 'economic reserves.'

"Somehow the workers of America are loath to give up their rights as freemen. Prof. Herrick's idea is interesting because of his all-absorbing desire to protect employers and industries and in his failure to give

EASTER MONDAY PARTY AT AUDITORIUM

On next Monday evening in the Memorial Auditorium the Mathew Thompson Institute will present its annual Easter Monday party, featured by what its members and large following regard as the prettiest event of the season, the "Treason Beautiful." Pupils of the dreammaking department of the evening vocational classes, under the leadership of their teachers, will pit their skill and ingenuity against one another in this costume march, and a keen contest is forecasted.

With the intention of showing the people of Lowell the great progress made in the evening schools in this one line of vocational training, the teachers have entered into this competition with fine enthusiasm. Their efforts have been ably seconded by their pupils, glad of the opportunity to make public display of their skill in designing and fashioning pretty and unusual costumes. Their spare time has been given freely to this purpose, and it is believed that the array of costumes will be the finest ever exhibited in this city.

The costume march is the main, but not the exclusive feature of the Mathew party. A number of well known entertainers will participate in a well balanced program which will precede the pageant. Most of the artists selected to appear scored hits in the January "Musical Minstrel White," and their specialties next Monday evening will be equally pleasing. Following the pageant general dancing will begin and will be enjoyed until 1 a. m.

A miscellaneous shower was held last evening at the home of Mrs. John J. Powers, 21 Laurel street in honor of Miss Anna Powers, a popular young lady of the South End. Miss Powers was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and congratulations. Games and entertainment numbers were enjoyed until a late hour. The following girls had charge of the shower: Misses May Dunlavy, Katherine Dunlavy and Mrs. Lawrence Hayden. Miss Powers is soon to become the bride of Mr. Chas. Donovan of Lawrence.

any consideration to the protection of human life and the advancement of the human interests of that large group of producers—the wage-earning class. For the workers to resent wrong, for them to organize to protect themselves against economic enslavement, for them to aspire to a better life and to the higher things in life, evidently is all wrong, according to the ideas of Prof. Herrick.

"Why continue the unjust and uneconomic assumption that the possessors of wealth can do no wrong and need not be restrained while the non-possessors of wealth are always wrong and need always to be regulated and restrained? Are we to condone the conduct of those making it imperative for the workers to protest against their continued degradation and slavery and by the only power in their possession—the strike? Does Prof. Herrick intend that there should be maintained constantly an army of unemployed, but trained and paid for by the state? Or does he intend that our princes of finance shall voluntarily contribute and assign part of their working force to this economic reserve? In either event Prof. Herrick again assumes that the workers are more autonomous to be shifted at will, and that they are unresponsive to the sympathetic appeal of their fellow workers."

BRITISH INDIAN TROOPS WANT NATIVE OFFICERS

DELHI, India, March 27.—The Indianization of the Indian army, which has been one of the most disturbing questions in Indian politics during recent months, is being made a leading subject for discussion at the present session of the national legislature. The object sought by the Indians is to have only Indian officers for Indian troops. Agitation along this line has been increasing gradually for several years, and is expected to result in legislative action at an early date.

In a recent meeting of the legislative assembly, Mr. Yamin Khan moved to recommend to the governor-general-in-council that he get King's commissions for Indians by direct recruitment until all Indian regiments are wholly Indianized.

Mr. Yamin Khan, in urging his resolution, made it clear that he did not underrate the services rendered by British officers in India. His position was that Indian soldiers should have an opening for rising to the highest ranks in the army, as is the case in other countries.

Lord Rawlinson, commander-in-chief of the Indian army, replying to Mr. Yamin Khan, said the government recognized that the demand for Indianization was inevitable, and was considering a scheme to bring it about. He held that there should be no violent change, and that the best time for transformation would be when the country is undisturbed by external or internal dangers, and gave as his opinion that there should be no wholesale Indianization before the success or failure of the change had been tested on a limited scale.

RICH PHOSPHATE BEDS

CASABLANCA, Morocco, March 27.—Rich and vast phosphate beds recently discovered in Morocco make that country a potential factor of economic importance, says C. H. Heathcote-Smith, British consul, in a report to the foreign office. Morocco is credited with the possession of deposits of phosphate rivaling in extent those of Florida, and in content those of any other country in the Eastern hemisphere.

The Oued Zem-El Bouroudj beds, 100 miles south of Casablanca, cover a district of some 80 miles in length and from 3 to 60 miles in breadth. They consist of horizontal layers several metres deep, lying practically on the surface, and of so high a percentage that Florida alone can show similarly rich deposits.

The beds other than at El Bouroudj also contain a high percentage of phosphates, varying from 68 to 72 per cent. It has been calculated that even if the beds were exploited at the rate of several millions of tons annually, centuries will elapse before their exhaustion.

FEWER MEN IN JAIL

LONDON, March 27.—England today is supporting fewer poor persons and fewer prisoners than at any time since 1911. Thirteen years ago there were 117 indigent persons to each 10,000 of population living at the expense of the state, compared to 70 today.

In 1911 the inmates of prisons and reformatories averaged 13.6 per 10,000 population as against 8.3 at the present time.

France Mourns

"Divine Sarah"

the first of temper which were characteristic of her stage career.

After a year or two at the convent, she conceived a passionate desire to become a nun. To this her mother recorded an unqualified opposition, and suggested a theatrical career instead.

"She's too thin to be an actress," said her god-father. "Let her be a nun."

"I won't be an actress," little Sarah categorically exclaimed. "Rachel is an actress. She came to the convent and walked around the garden, then she had to sit down because she couldn't get her breath. They fetched her something to bring her around, but she was so pale, oh, so pale. I was very sorry for her, and she told me that what she was doing was killing her, for she was an actress, and so I won't be an actress, I won't."

First Appearance in 1862

But fate had determined otherwise, and at the age of 14 Bernhardt was sent to a conservatory. At the end of the first year she won second prize for tragedy. A subscription among the players at the Comedie Francaise enabled her to spend another year at the conservatory, and upon the completion of this she carried off second prize for comedy. Her first public appearance was at the Comedie Francaise in Aug., 1862. She took a minor part without any marked success.

Five years later she emerged from laborious obscurity with her first definite success as Cordelia in a French translation of "King Lear" at the Odeon, then as Queen in Victor Hugo's "Huy Blas," and above all as Zerkine in Francois Coppée's "Le Passant," which she played in 1869.

Then came the Franco-Prussian war. Bernhardt increased her popularity by becoming a war nurse. In 1871 she was made a life member of the Comedie Francaise. She clashed repeatedly with M. Perrin, the manager, over the roles she should take, and once in a fit of pique fled from the theatre and decided to give up the stage. She plunged into sculpture. Her first piece, "After the Storm," finished some years later—won a place in the salon. She returned to M. Perrin only to break with him again, incurring a forfeit of 4000 pounds, which she paid.

Toured U. S. and Canada

She invaded England, receiving a tremendous ovation, then toured Denmark and Russia. Next she came to America, where her success was instantaneous. She toured the United States and Canada eight times in 25 years, and appeared several times in the larger cities of South America.

Breaking with the theatrical syndicates, which denied her the use of their theatres when she refused to come to their terms, she was compelled to appear on one of her American tours in tents, convention halls and armories. She vowed never to appear in a theatre again, but on subsequent visits she came to terms with the syndicates.

The great actress was a grandmother when she last appeared in America, and had suffered amputation of her right leg. When her arrival in New York, Oct. 1916, it was evident to the group of friends and admirers who gathered to welcome her that she walked with extreme difficulty.

While playing in New England she contracted a severe cold which prompted her to take a trip south to her health. A few weeks later she underwent an operation for infection of the kidney, and although more than 70 years of age, she enjoyed complete recovery and remained in America for several months.

The injury to her knee which compelled the amputation of her leg in 1914 was attributed to many different causes. For years before the amputation the plays in which she appeared were altered to hide the fact that she was able to walk only with great difficulty. The operation was performed in Paris, and upon her recovery she reappeared on the stage to receive the greatest ovation of her career. Her manager announced that henceforth she would interpret only motionless roles.

Took Part in War Work

During the World War Bernhardt made several trips to the French front and gave a number of performances for the soldiers. This, she declared was the "incomparable event" of her life.

The memoirs of Bernhardt, sedulously avoided any mention of her marital experience, and only in the middle of the bulky volume does she mention casually the existence of a son. One of her critics declared that "she never seemed to find the man who could master her."

"There was in her," he continued, "the making of a superwoman, and although she met Victor Hugo and the greatest intellectual potentates of her time, the superman who alone could hold her, never entered her life."

Years ago a jealous rival of her theatrical career published a satire entitled "The Story of Sarah Bernhardt," in which the love affairs of the actress, real and alleged, were shamelessly laid bare. Bernhardt resorted to the horse-whip to punish the author.

Married in 1862

In 1862 the actress was married to Jacques Damala, a handsome Greek who had made a name in the theatrical world through his work in "The Ironmaster." He later took a minor part in one of her plays, but after a year on tour they separated. Later she took him back to her home and nursed him through a fatal siege of consumption.

Mrs. Bernhardt's natural son, Maurice, showed no inclination to follow the profession of his mother, and after spending a short time in the French army, he married a Russian princess. She died after bearing him a daughter, and Maurice Bernhardt took a Parisienne as his second wife.

Many stories have been told of the fabulous sums according to the famous actress, especially in America, but authenticated figures show that the gross receipts of each tour were in the neighborhood of $500,000, of which she usually received 50 per cent. A large part of her earnings was reinvested in theatrical enterprises, and one time she owned or controlled half a dozen playhouses in Paris.

Appeared as "Hamlet"

Of the more than 200 parts Bernhardt essayed during her long stage career, perhaps the boldest experiment of all was the title role in a French production of Hamlet, which met with such unmistakable success that she was prompted to appear again as a man in "L'Aiglon." Her repertoire, in addition to the plays mentioned, included "Fosca of Arc," "Fedora," "Adrienne Lecouvreur," "Sapho," "Theodora" and "Hernani."

Her greatest successes, however, seemed to center in the Hugo and Sardou dramas, both tragedies and comedies. Many of these plays were written around her, and "fitted like a glove."

A physical description of Bernhardt is difficult. In her youth she undoubtedly was what might be called beautiful, although from the French standpoint her slimness was against her. The greatest interest in the actress, aside from her art, was the tenacity with which she clung to her childish appearance. At 75 she might have passed for a woman of 30, so well had the features of her younger days been preserved.

Bernhardt seems to have had no illusions about her personal appearance. By herself she features—high cheek bones, aquiline nose, and lips parted above an almost masculine chin—were not pleasing, but taken together they comprised the harmony of expression which gave her the title of "the divine Sarah." She admitted on one occasion that the effect of her long white face emerging from a long black sheath was by no means pleasant. "In this rig I look like an ant," she said.

Famous for Death Scenes

Bernhardt was the most famous, for her death scenes, but it is doubtful if her breathless, spellbinding audences perhaps ever knew that many of them were played while the actress was suffering almost unbearable agonies from her various ailments, of which she never was heard to complain.

Patience seemed to have been one of Bernhardt's inborn characteristics. She would spend weeks and even months trying to correct technical faults in some member of her company, and then, if the subject failed to improve, she would explode and have nothing more to do with him either on or off the stage—not even speaking to him under any circumstances.

She always displayed a keen interest in the heart affairs of her troupe, and delighted in holding a "cupid's court," in her private car, at which she would require aggrieved suitors and the objects of their affections to submit their differences—Bernhardt to be the final arbiter.

Gambled—Was Poor Loser

Another of her pastimes was gambling, although she was a poor loser. She remained jovial and vivacious as long as the game was running in her favor, but the moment her luck changed she became sullen and hostile. Her opponents, once they had lost to her, knew that it was gone for good, for she would throw down her cards and leave the game at the first sign of reverses.

A love for strange pets was another of Bernhardt's peculiarities. When she was a little girl she saved her money and bought a goat. She learned to love the animal so much that she wanted to become a goat-herd, and cried when her mother ridiculed the idea. During the Franco-Prussian war she raised geese for the soldiers, but grew to care so much for them that she refused to have them killed. Once in London she bought a lion-cub, a tiger and two chameleons at an auction sale. Another time she bought a baby elephant, but it grew itself out of a home. She tried for years to find a dwarf elephant, but never succeeded.

The conviviality of the dinner table was another of Bernhardt's delights. She particularly enjoyed a feast at midnight, after a performance, when the members of her company were present. She drank in moderation, and seldom touched anything but champagne. She never was known to smoke.

Slept in a Coffin

Two of the treasures in her Paris home invariably excited the interest of visitors. One was the skull given her by Victor Hugo on which he had written autograph verse to the actress, and the other was the coffin in which she occasionally slept. "This strange bed," she explained, "was padded with 'memories of her dead life'—faded rose leaves and letters yellow with age."

She once expressed a wish that this coffin be her final resting place, and in 1922 the idea was elaborated upon when she bought for $100 from the French government a little granite island in the Bay of Biscay, not far from her summer home at Belle Isle, where she planned to build a magnificent tomb-crowned with a marble statue of herself, with arms outstretched as if beckoning to harassed fishermen imperiled by the storms.

Death had a weird fascination for Bernhardt, and for years she contemplated it with what appeared to be an uncanny humor. The wish she most often expressed was that she might die in the midst of her triumphs. "I shall play until death," she said, "and the death I hope for is the death Sir Henry Irving died." Her English contemporary died on tour, being stricken with apoplexy after a performance in 1905.

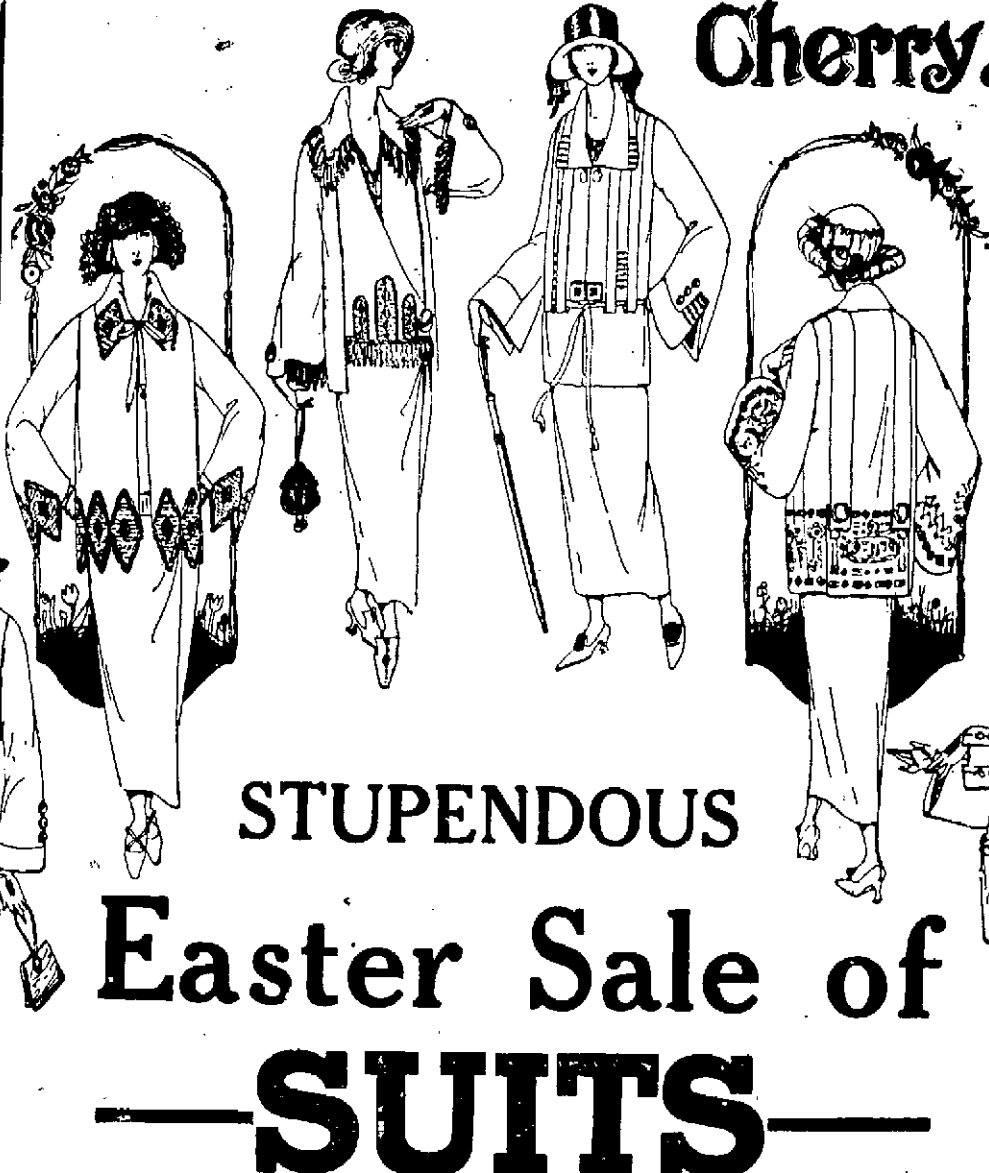

Toward the end of 1922, it was thought this desire might shorten her life considerably, for while she was dangerously ill in her Paris home, she told her iron will and her physicians and prepared to resume her part in a new play by Sacha Guitry that she was playing in when stricken. She felt the end was near, her sick-room attendants said, and wanted to be setting a leading role when death rang down the curtain.

STUMPT?

FROM childhood up, we meet stumps every day of our lives.

They either stump us, or we stump them. The more successful we are in jumping stumps, the less we are stumped by stumps.

LABELLING WOOL FABRICS

The question of labelling wool fabrics and clothing to show the percentages of new wool and reworked wool, respectively, is attracting widespread attention. Bills providing for such labelling and following the lines of the Capper bill are now coming up before the legislatures of various states. The manufacturers of wool goods are loudly asserting that such labelling legislation would be unwarrantable and that any attempt to enforce such a law would result in deceiving and defrauding the consumers. The manufacturers, therefore, are asking the state legislatures, as they have already asked congress, to put this "wool goods labelling legislation" to a special test by having samples of such goods analysed by competent chemists in order to show whether they can determine the percentage of new wool and also that of reworked wool, or what is commonly known as "shoddy."

Senator Capper introduced a labelling bill in congress which aroused much discussion and controversy. The senator charged that the opponents of his bill are profiteers and extortionists; but that does not prove that the law could be properly enforced if it were enacted. The manufacturers practically admit that they alone can tell the amount of new wool and the amount of shoddy in any given fabric turned out in a woolen mill. They claim that even chemists cannot determine the percentage of each in the composition of any given fabric. If their claim in this respect is true, and they assert that they can demonstrate its truth by an unerring test, then it would be futile to enact such a law and hence some other means should be found to serve the same purpose which is, to protect the public against paying for wool fabrics which in reality are made of shoddy. It is claimed, however, that shoddy has its place in the market as well as genuine wool, and that the producers of virgin wool are looking to their own interests in agitating for a law that will label fabrics according to the percentage of new or reworked wool that they may contain. It is further claimed that recovered wool in some grades is far superior for cloth-making purposes to much of the wool that this proposed law would label as virgin wool.

This whole question, it appears, is so complicated that we are inclined to believe that the claim of the manufacturers as to its unworkability is well-founded. Those who favor the bill should be ready to accept the result of the test proposed by the manufacturers or, if they themselves have a more reliable test, then they should apply it and show the results. There is no use in moving blindly in a technical matter of this description.

"DISMISSED"

Dismissal of the complaint that the freight rates on import and export traffic between New England cities and the middle west were "unreasonable" as compared with similar rates to and from Philadelphia, Baltimore and other ports, was recommended last Saturday to the Interstate Commerce commission by the special examiners who claim to have "investigated" the New England freight rates and declared them equitable to all concerned in the controversy. The briefs covering New England's demand for lower freight rates as a direct aid to relieving many local industries of heavy extra expenditures of money, cutting down profits on manufactured goods and raising the costs of manufacture in every direction, are therefore not approved by these examiners.

Thus ends one of the most remarkable cases of a solid section of the union demanding just treatment at the hands of a high tribunal and failure to secure it, with preferred rulings and regulations cordially rendered to other parts of the land where business is now being profitably conducted and railroads also benefiting exceedingly, with more prosperity following lower transportation costs and increased business.

The fight to overcome the differentials, so called, by which discrimination is practiced against New England, must be kept up, however, despite the adverse decision.

REFUSED HIGHER SALARY

It remained for Mayor Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester to secure a peculiar coup in voting a measure providing for an increase in his own salary. There was to be a sweeping increase of salaries for city officials giving the mayor $2,500 a year additional over his present salary of $3,000, increasing the salary of 11 city officials to an aggregate of $215,000 a year, and giving each of three police matrons $300 a year additional. Mayor Sullivan in his veto message stated that the drain on the taxpayers is already heavy enough without any increase, although if increases were to be favored, he would probably have approved that offered for the police-women. As for his own salary, Mayor Sullivan said, "that it matters little whether he received $5,000 or $7,500 a year, as it all goes in contributions to one cause or another." But he refused to draw upon the taxpayers to the extent proposed under any pretext whatsoever. In this Mayor Sullivan showed due regard for the interests of the taxpayers which will doubtless be duly appreciated.

REAL ESTATE BARGAINS

It is not the fault of the Lowell banks if many of the best parcels of real estate are purchased by non-residents. It appears that either local speculators do not see the opportunities offered by Lowell real estate or else they have not the courage or confidence to invest. It seems like a lack of enterprise on the part of local residents to allow outsiders to come in here and purchase property at a good price and yet be able to make a reasonable profit on the investment. It is to be hoped that our city is not to be overrun with rent gougers as are some other cities, because speculators have purchased property with the intention of boosting the rents from 10 to 20 per cent.

A few speculators who some years ago purchased important real estate in the business section have failed to make the profits they expected and that is what will happen to those who try to extort excessive rents from the tenants.

THE WINTER'S SEVERITY

There is much misconception as to the amount of snow that fell last winter as compared with others in which the snowfall was not regarded as quite so heavy. This year the total fall is announced to have been 37.5, while in 1919 the fall was 75.4 inches, and in 1915 79 inches. The thing that made our winter so severe and our snowfall seem so heavy was that the various snowstorms piled one upon another and lay on the ground much longer last season than in the former cases mentioned. The weather bureau does not agree that the past winter has been one of the most severe on record although the people of New England, especially those whose coal supply ran short, are best able to judge of the severity of the winter. The increased death rate is another proof of the severity of the past winter that cannot be gainsaid.

LABOR AND MR. WOOD

The recent announcement of President Wood of the American Woolen company that he would advance the wages of his employees and "always take care of them in the future, as in the past," has naturally delighted those who work under the woolen trust's banners. Unquestionably the Wood policies mean much for both the corporation of which he is the head and all employees who stick faithfully to the pay-rolls and do their work properly.

The recent vote of confidence in the Wood wage increase and words of cheer that accompanied it, taken at a meeting of the employees of the woolen mills where the new wage schedule was laid out, assures the president that the workers have the utmost confidence both in Mr. Wood and the present management of the corporation, so much so that they say they "will not allow any outsider to interfere with us."

Mill workers are not seeking trouble before it comes to them, and we trust the American Woolen employees will be as well taken care of in the future as they have been in the past.

FARM LOAN BANKS

Under the law passed by the late congress entitled "The Federal Farm Loan Act" for the purpose of securing a workable dual system of short-time rural credits, some new banks are to be established. One class is to be entitled "Federal Intermediate Credit Banks" and the other "National Agricultural Credit Corporations." The city of Springfield has already applied for a federal intermediate bank. Springfield already has a federal farm loan bank. The law provides that the capital shall not be in excess of $5,000,000, divided into shares of $5 each, and shall be subscribed, held and paid, by the government of the United States. Springfield, of course, is in the center of an agricultural district and is sufficiently far from the city of Boston to make that location more or less a matter of public convenience. This is a case in which Lowell suffers from proximity to Boston. These banks are intended to enable the farmers to get liberal loans on reasonable terms in order to tide them over their present difficulties; and it remains to be seen whether the new law will accomplish the purpose for which it was intended and prove as beneficial to the farmers as its sponsors predicted.

The justice of the supreme court who advocates the prohibition of divorce by legislative action is right. Such a reform would cause young people to marry for life rather than until such times as either breaks away or both decide to burst the bonds of union.

There is work to do in this and every other city for a planning board; but somehow our planning boards in the past did very little planning. It remains to be seen whether the new board just appointed will accomplish anything worth while. We assume that the appointments will be confirmed.

The Divine Sarah is dead. She was the greatest actress of her time and the brilliant particular star of the theatrical firmament long before there was any talk of moving pictures which have largely supplanted real dramatic performances.

Councilor Daly's ordinance to prohibit auction sales of jewelry by itinerant vendors is one that, if adopted, would protect the public against the imposition usually practiced at such sales.

The wage question will keep Paul Hiver in a state of suspense until a settlement is reached. If wise counsel prevails, that will come soon—say April 20 at the latest.

SEEN AND HEARD

He who laughs last may laugh the best but not the most often.

One tells us she considers a perfect gentleman a perfect bore.

The last word is the one that lasts. Be careful with it.

A Frenchman spent 10 years inventing a noiseless clock, and when he had succeeded nobody would buy it.

Missouri leads all the states in the number of wooden legs produced; last year $2,421,000 worth were made in that state.

The parents of a Norway, Me., youngster left home for the day without leaving the usual funds for expenses. He decided to go to the movies and failing to find the required 15 cents took his bank book, went to the bank on his way to the theatre and drew only the 15 cents.

A Thought

He that wants good sense in unhappy in having learning, for he has thereby only more ways of exposing himself, and he that has sense knows that learning is not knowledge, but rather the art of using it.—Stoics.

Food for Thought

"I want to tell you, sir," said Alfonso, "that I've got engaged to your daughter." "Well, dash it all, don't come to me for sympathy. What else did you expect after banking around the house every night for months?" replied Arabella's father.

Might Wear It Himself

She had a high opinion of herself and regarded customers as really rather numerous. "What is your purpose for inquiring the weak-looking man?" "No," she snapped. "We sell them." "Any way," he said, as he stroled toward the door, "I'll be back here when you are going to sell me. Good morning."

Train Pursuer

The man who wanted to see everybody getting on entered his friend's office. "One clerk he put this question: 'What is your purpose in life?'" "That," said the clerk, "depends upon whether I am coming or going. It's 5.30 in the morning and the 5.30 train is in the evening."—Pearson's Weekly.

The Proper Word

A French mayor who at one time held the office of magistrate was about to perform the civil rite of marriage. "Mlle X," he said, "do you agree to take this man for your wedded husband?" After the woman had replied in the affirmative the mayor, turning to the bridegroom, delivered himself as follows: "Pardonner, what have you to say in your defense?"

Pre-Volstead Recipe

The bride told hubby to come home that evening all set for a fine dinner. She was ready to prepare her first meal in the new home. So after putting the house to rights she took down the book-book inherited from her mother-in-law and proceeded to run her eye carefully over the index. One recipe called for "fused oysters." This intrigued her. She turned to "fused oysters." The recipe started off merrily in this wise: Take a gill of brandy, a cupful of sherry—Sadly she closed the book.

Capital Jokes

If you should ask U. S. Senator Henry L. Myers of Montana for his favorite story he would unveil the following:

The United States supreme court is the most augustly dignified body in the world. When the justices enter in solemn black-cowled procession, all in the court arise, and as the justices are seated, the bailiffs boom out in a deep and solemn voice, "Hear ye, hear ye! The honorable the supreme court of the United States is now in session. All having business with the court draw near and make it known. God save the United States and this honorable court!" It is a highly impressive scene. One of all the judges who have helped to make it so, perhaps Chief Justice White was the most dignified, the most impressive. On a certain day this august procession, headed by Chief Justice White, filed from the side door into the court as usual, while all the attendants and spectators arose. Out into the aisle stepped a plainly-dressed, white-haired old farmer, and with hand extended and face wreathed in smiles, he accosted the chief justice. "Why, howdy, 'bore!" he said. A gasp went through the courtroom. The judge, thunder-struck, frowned portentously; then of a sudden, he grinned, shook hands with the old man and went on his way to the dais. Later he left his seat, came down into the court and talked for some time with the old farmer, who was an old friend from his home town. There isn't any particular point to this story, save that it shows that a supreme court justice has a sense of democracy and of humor.

Prophecy Fulfilled

I knew when they said that the skirts I would be longer.

I said: "They will go a little bit stronger—They're bound to do something that's worse than they ought."

I knew that the spirit which prompted rolled stockings—That grew from a wish to make starting display—Would find other methods of landing out stockings; My prophecy's truth you can witness today.

For skirts that are longer are bluish—Till your imagination is out of a job. The laws on "exposure" would surely indict 'er.

If there were but one of her, 'stead of a mob. —Farm Life.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Major Colby Kittredge, military instructor at the high school, has well set ideas as to America and Americanism, and he believes that in being an American one should be an American in the pledge to the flag, the usual wording is, "I pledge allegiance to my flag, etc.," but Major Kittredge is having the boys say it as is recommended by military authorities throughout the United States. This pledge is more specific than the former one for in a hall in which there is more than one flag it would be easy to point to any one other than the U. S. flag in making the former pledge, but under the latter wording one always alludes to one flag, the flag of the United States, and that only.

The sap buckets have been brought out, cleaned and made ready for the annual maple syrup harvest now in order in Vermont forests and other sections of New England where sugar maples flourish to a smaller extent. The sap-running season is at hand, and although the farmers are starting a little later this month owing to the immense amount of snow in the woods, the season will continue its usual length, probably. If there are no untoward storms to interfere greatly, a good season in all the "run" places is indicated. The maple sugars and the syrups will be higher than ever before. Orchard owners say so and they generally know what the whole-sale prices are to be, for they make their own sales prices and get what belongs to them, as a rule. A number of Boston wholesalers are in the market for "first runs" and are offering prices away above last season's first figures. The first syrups on the New England market last year retailed from $3 to $2.50 per gallon. Maple sugar sold for 30 and 35 cents a pound in the cake. No established average price has yet been set for this year's crop of golden syrup, but it is higher than last year's figure beyond the question of a doubt. Vermonters last year tapped 5,000,000 trees. Owing to the late season the 1923 crop may be smaller than that of last year.

For the fourth consecutive year, high school students of the nation are to be invited to compete for the largest single educational award offered in the United States, according to a statement by the highway education board at Washington today. The award is the H. S. Firestone four years university scholarship, providing not only tuition, but room, board, books and special fees for the student writing the best essay in the annual good roads essay contest. The assigned subject of the essays to be written is "The influence of highway transportation upon the religious life of my community." Announcement of the contest is being made to superintendents of schools, high school principals, and students as rapidly as possible, and all available literature is being listed and tabulated for the information of the prospective contestants. The board announces its willingness to answer any inquiry students and teachers may desire to make, but it points out that all that is necessary is compliance with the simple rules of the contest, and the preparation of a 700-word essay on the subject. Essays should be submitted to the high school principal by May 1.

The best three essays from each high school are to be submitted to the board, and where the best essay from the commonwealth will be chosen. One essay from each state and territory will then come to the board at Washington, D. C. There is to be a national committee to be named by Dr. John H. Elbert, U. S. commissioner of education. The national committee will award the scholarship. Inquiries should be addressed to the highway education board, Willard building, Washington, D. C.

Children Saved by "Gold Star" Mother

Orphanage has been established beside the peaceful blue of the Mediterranean. "But what will become of my other children—that great number who have nobody anywhere?" asks this little mother from Nebraska. "It will be hard for the one who has the right to go away to happy homes."

"Can I tell them that they have at least an uncle, over there, (Uncle America) who will help me take care of them and educate them until they are old enough to work and care for themselves?"

There are 115,000 parentless children among those who have been saved by the relief workers, Mrs. Kalk says.

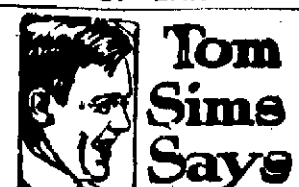

Two fathers are among those in Massachusetts to whom the "resurrection" news will make this Easter one of the happiest of their lives. One of them is the father of a little girl, Sarah, in Lowell, whose little daughter, Sarah, is among the rescued eight-six; and Garabed Amourian, P. O. Box 530, in the same city, whose daughter, Sultana, has been saved by the "Gold Star" mother.

Three Massachusetts brothers and a sister are looking forward to reunions—Mrs. Yeva Holzarjian, P. O. Box 351, Grafton, whose sister, Julia, is among those brought out from Turkey; Setrak Nagarian, 35 Central street, in Lowell; Masrob Adeshian, 24 Laurel street, Worcester; and Sarkis Chutchan, 63 Herkley street, Boston. Harabed has news from Mrs. Kalk of his sister, Veronika, Adeshian of three sisters, Zabel, Prapian and Nurset; and the third is happy over one little sister salvaged from the ash heap of Near Eastern civilization. Word of eight nieces safe and sound from the Anatolian disasters is on its way to other Massachusetts residents: George Jugherjian, 14 Arch street, Worcester, about two little nieces, Hoosanna and Aroust; Garabed Deolian, 31 Chandler street, Worcester, concerning his niece, Sultana; H. Mesropian, 220 Church street, Whitinsville, of a niece, Zabel, and also of a friend's daughter, Fakhon Mooradian; A. Ekeghian, 316 Thron ave., Cambridge, of a niece, Garabed; H. Toris, 100 Main, 22 Brook street, Whitinsville, who has also a niece, Vartan; Mrs. Marham Margosian, believed to live at 153 E. street, Boston, concerning her niece, Arakay Bedolian; Vosgian Deramannian, P. O. Box 23, Newburyport, and Vartan Deramannian, 60 Taylor street, Lowell, both of whom are receiving news of their niece, Zart.

In Bridgewater, Mass., Mr. Nyanian, of 171 Plymouth street, is rejoicing over the rescue of no less than four little girls, his sister's children, who owe their safety to the Nebraska mother. He is the only surviving relative.

EXHIBITION DRILL AND DANCE BY CADETS

A most enjoyable program has been arranged for the exhibition drill and dance by the O.M.L. Cadets on Easter Tuesday, April 2.

For the best drilled private there will be a gold medal of honor. The second prize will be a handsome silver medal.

For the young officers' individual drill, beautiful loving cup will be awarded with the best wishes of Frank Ricard, the well known local jeweler.

There will be a meeting of the cadets in the Y.M.C.A. hall on Stackpole street this evening at 7.30.

Rev. Fr. Sullivan, O.M.L. chaplain, will preside at the meeting tonight and with the executive committee will draw the final plans for the exhibition drill and dance.

This is the best after Lenten party that this organization has ever attempted and the members plan a great surprise.

The young soldiers will march in a body on the evening of April 24 to Associate hall where they will grand march to the tune of "America United." This march was written by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, O.M.L. A staff of 16 officers will lead the march in the hall. The military tactics will be under the supervision of regular army men, who served in the great World war, Francis Gargan, former Ensigns Corp., U.S.A., William Conroy, Inf. Brig., and Capt. LOWELL ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY
The concert to be held by the society on April 13th will demonstrate the value of rehearsals. Inasmuch as the organization has been very enthusiastic during this past winter they have performed very creditably which will, no doubt, impress the music lovers of Lowell that where there is any interest shown by any body of members they can accomplish a great deal of good, not alone for themselves, but for such people who like the works of great masters played in the proper spirit. Members will receive their tickets in due time.

HUGE GAINS IN DOMESTIC INDUSTRIES

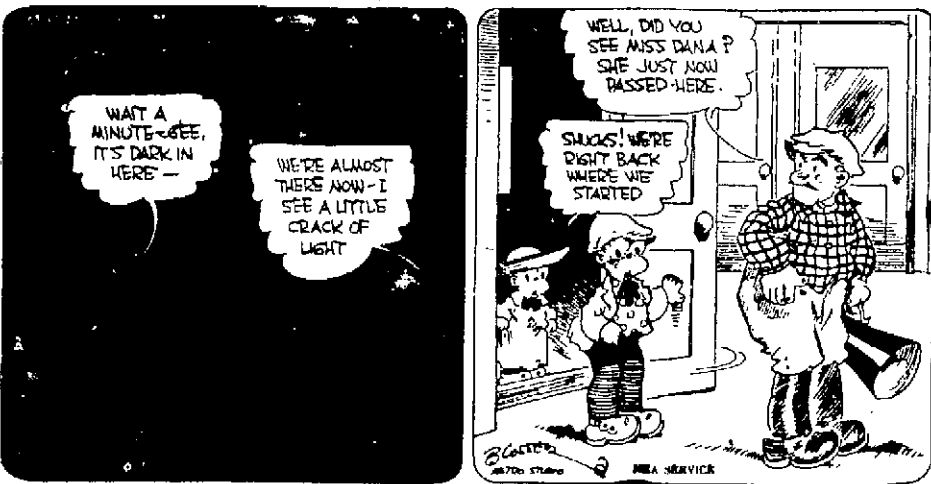

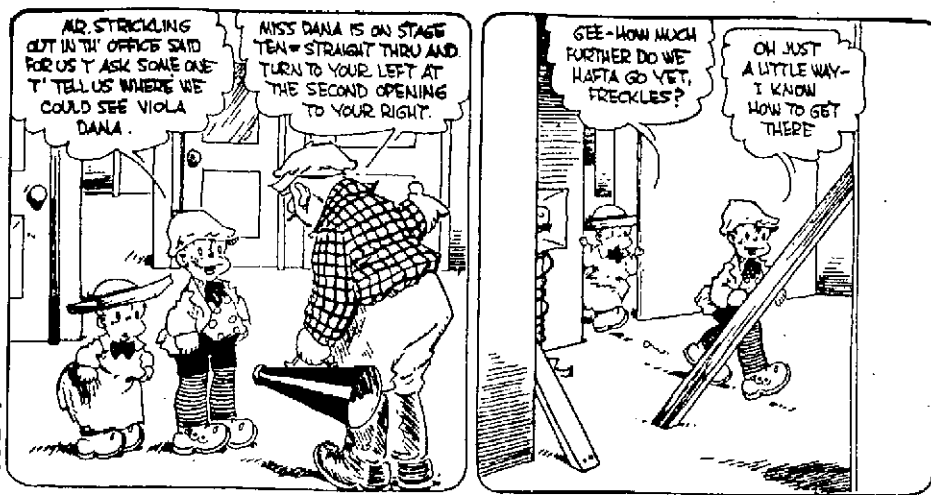

By NEA Service
WASHINGTON, March 26.—The lumber industry, taken as an index to activity in other lines of building materials, indicates the strong demand, exceeding production, which government authorities say has resulted in inflated prices.

Figures for total production of softwood lumber, including pine, hemlock and redwood, for the 10 weeks of 1923 ending March 10, show a total cut of 2,049,181,898 feet.

In the same 10 weeks, however, shipments amounted to 2,494,592,363 feet and orders booked aggregated 2,699,371,031 feet. Orders, it will be noted, exceeded production by more than 600,000,000 feet.

As compared to the same period in 1922, production increased 287,096,827 feet, shipments climbed 802,355,467 feet, while orders were 955,128,023 above those for the same period last year.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

TALKS WHILE TUMOR IS CUT FROM BRAIN

NEW YORK, March 27.—A remarkable operation for brain tumor—during which the patient, Henry A. Brown of Newark, N. J., under local anesthesia only, discussed his feelings with doctors and nurses—was described by the staff of Beth Israel hospital yesterday.

The operation was performed on Feb. 27. The patient has recovered so completely that, except for the fact that his wife is herself in a hospital with a broken leg, he now would be at home under her care.

More than a year ago Brown was forced to leave his furniture shop when his right side became paralyzed. He complained of terrible headaches and sometimes was seized with epileptic fits. Then his memory failed him and he fell into a semi-stupor.

Finally he was taken to Beth Israel hospital for an operation. During a period of lucidity Brown was informed that if he wished to live he must submit, under local anesthesia, to a two-hour operation. Brown, from the hospital, who is 49, said he had become reconciled to the idea of death and that he would play his one chance.

He promised to co-operate with the surgeons. He was told to tell them whenever he felt the anesthesia wearing off and was warned that an unexpected movement on his part would mean his end.

Relaxing as directed, he was placed on the operating table, the skull trephined and the brain covering removed until the tumor was revealed. Dr. Emil Altman, hospital neurologist, who had diagnosed the case as one of a large tumor, saw revealed a tumor two inches by four, and three-quarters of an inch thick. Dr. K. Winfield May, the operating surgeon, continued steadily at his work, pausing only when the patient asked for more anesthesia. Finally the tumor was removed and bandages were applied tight.

Brown said the first result he noticed was cessation of the headaches. Then he regained his memory gradually. First came to him the name of his oldest child—then those of all his family. Eventually his whole past was restored to him.

Then his paralysis disappeared and he now can move about freely. He is convalescing at a home in White Plains, waiting for his wife to return to him, to a two-hour operation. Brown, from the hospital,

Begins "Weeding Out" Re-

BOSTON, Mar. 27.—Manager Frank Chance of the Red Sox has reached the conclusion that a number of his players are failing to measure up to big league standards at the Hot Springs, Ark., training camp. He is said to feel that Johnny Mitchell, because of a weak throwing arm will not do so shortly; that Norman Miller will not make a third baseman; that Eddie Goebel, Mike Menosky and Harry Gehlold do not come up to the mark as outfielders; Dave Hick and Dan Fouts as catchers; and

DISCOVERS REMAINS OF ROMAN BASILICA

SPAN, Tunis, Mar. 26.—In her olive garden, bordering on the Sahary desert, Mrs. Helen Joannes, a former Wellesley student, has discovered the remains of an old Roman basilica. The find is of greatest interest to archaeologists and historians for its connection with the history of the Roman occupation of northern Africa.

Mrs. Joannes is the daughter of Eugene Regnault, for many years French ambassador to Japan and also high commissioner in Siberia during the period of the Kolchak anti-bolshevik expedition.

With her sister, Martha, Mrs. Joannes did post-graduate work at Wellesley. She is well known in Boston, New York and Washington society.

Fascinated by the discovery of the tomb of King Tutankhamen, Mrs. Joannes started excavations in the wild Arab country near Mahars. She was rewarded by unearthing beautiful stone basins used by the Romans in the second century. It contained mosaics, a drinking fountain, well preserved altar column and Roman crosses.

The discovery has led to general excavations in Tunis and Algeria, with the result that other relics of the Romans have been brought to light.

MANUFACTURING SILK SHAWLS AT HOME

As the result of a "tip" given by officers of the burg squad following an unsuccessful raid last week, Lieut. Martin Maher, Sergt. Philip Dwyer, Sergt. Michael Wynn and Max E. J. Noyes visited a family in Williams street yesterday afternoon and recovered a large quantity of silk and cotton threads supposed to have been taken from the Ipswich hosiery in Warren street.

When the officers entered the house, they found a large-sized loom in operation, and a girl, four silk shawls of artistic design, which had been manufactured by the machine, the occupants of the house claimed that the goods had been given to them by an unknown man who lived next door but who since vacated the premises. No arrests were made today but it is expected that a warrant for receiving stolen property will be issued soon.

As yet the superintendent has not received a certified list of regulation lights.

"LIBERTY OR DEATH"

Labor Unionists in France Resume Agitation in Favor of Sacco and Vanzetti

PARIS, March 26.—(By the Associated Press.) Labor unionists of extreme tendencies in France have resumed their agitation in favor of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted of murder at South Braintree, Mass., and are organizing meetings, the advance posters of which bear the caption: "Liberty or Death."

These posters declare that "the infamous Judge Thayer (Judge Webster Thayer of the Massachusetts superior court) persists in postponing the retrial of Sacco and Vanzetti in spite of the fact that, one after another, the prosecuting witnesses have retracted."

Repression of the activities of the workers and anarchists throughout the world, is generally denounced at these meetings, particular stress being placed on the cases of Sacco and Vanzetti, and the sentence to hanging of 172 persons in India. The French action in the Ruhr is also repudiated by the labor extremists.

The police as a rule attach no more significance to these meetings than to the usual run of extremist gatherings, but a discreet guard is still maintained over Ambassador Herriek's residence and the American embassy.

Frequent callers at the embassy have become familiar with the faces of several individuals who seem to be sometimes just loitering in the vicinity and at other times looking innocently for a street number. They are plain clothes men, stationed there to watch visitors to the embassy and see that no extremists are admitted. They are specialists in following the known anarchists in France, most of whom they know by sight.

Ambassador Herriek is probably unaware of the extent of this protection as the detectives take good care to keep out of his sight, but it would be difficult for a person bent on violence to approach him at either the embassy or his home.

THREATS BY REBELS

Post Notices Near Churches in Southern County Leitrim, Ireland

BELFAST, March 26 (by the Associated Press).—Notices posted Sunday near Catholic churches in southern county Leitrim state that, if any soldiers of the Irish Republican army belonging to the third battalion in that area are executed by the Free State, "all doctors, priests and ministers will have to clear out within 24 hours, after which their motors will be fired on at sight."

Any person assisting the Free State by giving out information likely to lead to the capture of a soldier or the Irish Republican army will be liable to the death penalty, the notices declare.

At some of the churches the clergy tore down the warning, and one curate said he would refuse to run; he would wait to be shot.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A grand jury indictment returned here today charged Arthur A. O'Brien, formerly a lieutenant colonel attached to the war department and David J. Maclean, an attorney representing the Newbury Realty Co. of Boston, with conspiracy to defraud the United States of $25,000 in connection with the leasing of the Newbury building in Boston by the government, in 1918.

PITTSBURGH, March 26.—Jonas Lie and Horatio Walker, of New York, have been named the American members of the jury of award for the 22nd international exhibition of paintings to be held at Carnegie institute here, beginning April 26. It was announced today by Homer Saint Gaudens, director of fine arts.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Despite the firm belief of naval authorities that the United States should proceed with the battleship modernization program authorized by congress, some administration officials are preparing to oppose any steps by this government which might give rise to a controversy among the nations signatory to the naval treaty as it was written in the Washington armament conference.

ENGINEER DIES OF RUSS. BANGOR, Me., March 26.—William H. Lawyer Turns Sculptor and Wins Fame And Fortune With Nail File

ERNESTO BOGNI DEL PIATTA (RIGHT), MAN OF MANY ARTS AND HIS BUST OF W. C. DURANT.

By EDWARD THIERRY
N.E.A. Service Staff Writer
NEW YORK, March 27.—A lawyer turned sculptor who never took a lesson in his life, but started making busts with a nail file and a buttonhook, has jumped from obscurity to fame in less than four years—and is paid as high as $7,500 for one statuette.

Ernesto Bogni del Piatta, whose latest exploit is a bust of W. C. Durant, automobile manufacturer, is the man who has suddenly turned topsy-turvy all popular conceptions of art and artists.

"Artists don't starve out misundstood lives in attics," he says. "They're not all erratic geniuses, afflicted with idiosyncrasies and exploding in fits of temperment."

"Persons like that aren't artists. They're imitations. Art is common-sense. That's why crazy culls, like cubist art, cannot endure."

Bogni says an artist can't be a success if he's incompetent. He points to the Durant bust as an example. "I chased him around for three months just to get 60 minutes' poselt," Bogni said. "He was busy at his art—there is art in business no matter what pseudo-idealists say—and I simply adjusted mine to his. I rely on my enthusiasm and I had to keep my enthusiasm alive under all handicaps."

The Durant bust has been pronounced perfect by critics. The same is true of his head of Major General John P. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th Division for which he received $7500.

Bogni's revolutionary ideas about art have had a successful demonstration as the result of a bet. In a discussion with a friend over sculpting in 1919 he borrowed some modeling clay, which he had never touched before, and within 30 minutes made a head with the aid of a nail file and a buttonhook. The friend considered it such a good likeness of himself that he had it cast in bronze and exhibited it.

Immediately he was deluged with commissions. He did busts of Mrs. Walter Lewisohn, Mrs. Roger Minton, and other society women; President Menocal of Cuba, Gatti-Casazza, the opera impresario; Father Duffy, famous chaplain of the 69th Regiment, and others.

Bogni wanted to be a musician, but he family in Italy insisted there wasn't enough money in art and deflected him into law. He practiced as a lawyer in Florence and came to America as a partner in a law firm in 1908. He didn't like it, and decided to take up painting. With another leap he plunged into literature and wrote several monumental works, including "Italians in the United States" and with the endorsement of the pope such books as "The Catholic Church in the United States" and "The Vatican, Its History and Treasures." In 1919 he suddenly switched to sculpturing and has gained fame and fortune.

"My Durant head was a test of common-sense art," he said. "He was swift and so was I—just modern business methods applied to art. Why not that, instead of foolish talk about applying art to business? It's there now."

SOVIET COURT CONVICTS BISHOP AND PRIESTS

MOSCOW, March 26 (by the Associated Press).—Archbishop Zepilak, head of the Russian Catholic church in Russia, and all the 16 priests on trial with him, charged with opposing soviet government, were found guilty by the court. Archbishop Zepilak and Vicar General Bulchavich were sentenced to death. The central executive committee ordered a stay of execution of the death sentences.

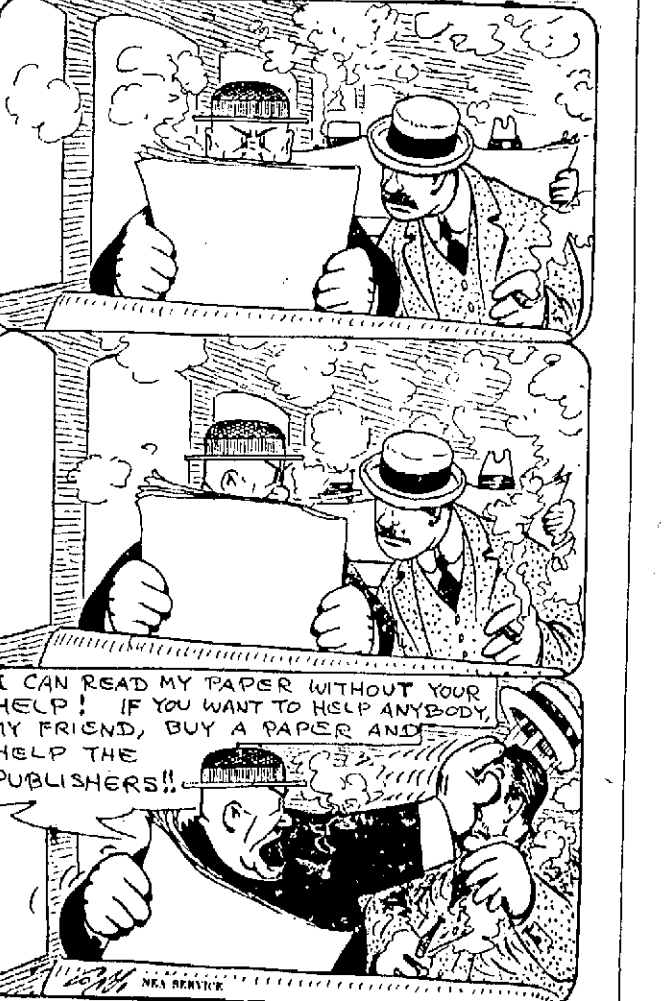

GEN. BOFIN, IRISH REBEL LEADER, CAPTURED

LONDON, March 26.—The Belfast correspondent of the Evening News, commenting upon the capture by Free State troops of Gen. Bofin, one of the chief irregular leaders, writes: "Bofin's arrest came as a somewhat tame climax to his career of thrills. He, with three companions, was captured while sleeping peacefully in Rockbrook House, County Sligo. It is expected Bofin will be placed on trial for his life. In view of his notorious exploits."

A WISE OLD ROOSTER

THERE STOOD A PURPLE ROOSTER, LOOKING AT THEM THROUGH A LARGE PAIR OF SPECTACLES.

Nancy and Nick stood looking at Jack Straw's house spinning around on top of a steeple in Mix-up Land.

That is the last place it had jumped to.

"I know what I'll do," cried Nick. "I'll break another of the eggs that the Cat-Quil Lady gave us."

So he broke an egg.

Instantly a ladder appeared and as quickly hopped away toward the steeple leading itself up obligingly against the side.

"Hurry, Nancy. We'll climb it and get to Jack Straw's house," said Nick, starting to run.

"Of course you know what you are doing, but I'd be careful if I were you," said a voice.

There stood a purple rooster, looking at them through a large pair of spectacles.

"Why?" asked Nancy.

"Because if Jack Straw sees you and turns his magic ring, the ladder will tumble about your ears and then where will you be?"

"I'll break another egg and see what happens," said Nick. So he broke another magic egg and out tumbled a feather-bed.

"Cock-a-doodle-doo!" crowed the rooster. "I wonder what kind of a hen laid those eggs? They surely ought to bring more than 60 cents a setting!"

"Now I know where we'll be if we fail!" cried Nancy. "On the feather bed! Come, Nick, let's hurry!"

"But spook!" put in the rooster. "spook mean old Jack Straw turns his ring and blows all the feather away!"

"I'll break another egg and see," said Nick.

So he broke another egg, the last one, and what do you think?

There was only a piece of paper in it.

"Well, I declare!" said the rooster. "I guess our troubles will be over soon and Mix-Up Land will be Apple-Pie Land again. That's the very paper I've been searching for. It tells how to get rid of that rogue, Jack Straw."

LABOR SHORTAGE THIS U. S. SAILORS THROUG STORES OF BUSY JAFFA

BOSTON, March 27.—An acute shortage of several classes of artisans in the building trades in some New England cities this summer was forecast in a survey of industrial conditions made public yesterday by Charles D. Brown of Gloucester, chief of the department of labor in New England.

Employment in this section increased in February, instead of showing the usual falling off due to inclement weather, according to his report.

"The broadening of industry throughout this section evidenced during the month of February has had a most satisfactory effect on unemployment," Mr. Brown said. "February, which usually shows decreased employment on account of inclement weather conditions, which affect all outside activities, has this time shown an increase of labor added to pay-rolls over the month of January. In a survey of industrial conditions throughout this district, it was particularly interesting to note that practically all building tradesmen were employed, with, in some cases, shortages of certain of these workers existing. Contemplated extension of already huge building operations will employ all of these artisans and thus develop acute shortages in some cities during the summer months."

"The following cities showed a decrease in unemployment for the month of February as compared with January: Manchester, N. H., Boston, Worcester, Bridgeport, Providence, New Bedford, Springfield and Lawrence."

"The following cities showed an increase in unemployment for the month of February as compared with January: Lowell, Fall River and Brockton."

JAFPA, Palestine, March 26. (By the Associated Press).—Jaffa, famous as the refuge of Jonah before he was swallowed by the whale, is assuming the aspect of an American city. Large numbers of Jews from the United States have come here and established stores, schools, cinemas and synagogues on the American plan. American newspapers and magazines of the current month are on sale, and small manufactured articles with the stamp "Made in the U. S. A." are plentiful and reasonably moderate in price. Many patriotic and devout Jews, seeking the homeland and religious shrine of their fathers, are here to spend the rest of their years in quiet and retirement. Others have set up in business with money made in America. Along the streets one sees familiar American signs like "Israel Jones, Tailor," "Samuel Levy, Stationer," "Isaac Sachs, Pawnbroker," "Joseph Kahn, Butcher," etc.

Jaffa is now a regular port of call for American torpedo destroyers in Mediterranean waters. But the exposed roadstead and dangerous submerged rocks frequently force the commanders to put in at the more sheltered port of Haifa, 100 miles north. Almost any day the stores of Jaffa may be seen full of American jack-tars purchasing souvenirs of the Holy Land, religious articles or some of the famous Jaffa oranges or Jordan almonds.

An excellent stone road built by the Turks and improved by the British expeditionary forces leads through the historic hills of Judea to Jerusalem. The American sailors if their parties and go to Jerusalem and Bethlehem in automobiles. The railroad connecting Jaffa and Jerusalem is little used by visitors, for the 40-mile trip can be made much more comfortably, faster and cheaper by motor car. Thousands of light American-made cars have been brought to the larger cities, and one might almost imagine himself to be in Detroit or Indianapolis.

Along the plains of Sharon and through the hills of Judea are scattered British concentration camps, with here and there a cemetery of white wooden crosses as a memorial of the great war. Green cactus bushes and the bright yellow of orange groves relieve the monotony of the bare landscape. At long intervals agricultural colonies founded by American Jews are springing into life. The homes are of rough-hewn stone and rarely have windows. Arab policemen, under British tutelage, guard the route through the lonely, uninhabited regions.

Jaffa is the center of Palestine commerce, just as it was in the days of King Solomon, who brought the giant cedars here with which to build his famous temple. Owing to the shallow, wind-swept harbor, ships are forced to anchor nearly a mile off-shore. Five hundred American tourists tried recently to land here from a big transatlantic liner, but were tied by the high winds to go north to Haifa.

Jaffa is famous through the east for its sweet and luscious oranges, which rival those of California and Florida. The orange growing industry is one of the most important economic assets of the country. Most of the members of the large German colony that was here before the war have returned and they are the only serious competitors of the Jewish fruit growers and city merchants.

Jack Daw in Candy Land. Chapter 5

Jack then noticed that here and there were tiny homes made out of candy boxes. Caramel explained that every piece of candy lived in these little homes so they would get used to being in a candy box. "You see," said Caramel, "later on they all move into big candy boxes and go away."

"Is that how I happened to find you in my box of candy?" asked Jack. "Certainly," replied Caramel. "I was packed in that box and would still be there if you hadn't let me out." Then a little pink piece of candy ran up. Caramel introduced it to Jack. "This is little Miss Bonbon" said he.

Jack got down on his knees and shook hands with Miss Bonbon. And, just at that moment, another sweetmeat came running up. "I'd like to meet you too," it shouted. So Miss Bonbon said, "This is Peppy. He's really a chocolate peppermint, but we call him Peppy for short." (Continued.)

WINNER OF EASTER BONNET

Miss Catherine Quinn Tops
List of Designers in Sun's
Novel Feature

More Than 1500 Designs Received by Polly Proctor in
Hat Contest

Miss Catherine Quinn, 16 Stanley street, Centralville, Lowell, wins the beautiful $20 hat prize in The Sun's
"Easter Bonnet" contest that closed
Saturday, March 24.

More than 1500 designs were received by Polly Proctor, in charge of the millinery contest. Pictures and coupons fairly flooded The Sun mailbox as a result of the great interest aroused by the novel contest for the prize—Easter millinery of personal selection and design.

Miss Quinn's drawing was selected from the mass of splendid rival entries because of the simple design presented, accurate detailed description and its strict conformity to the rules of the special committee of judges, Miss Grace Burns, advertising manager of the Boston Herald, and Mrs.
Jesse Jordan Hartford, well known
Lowell milliner.

Many of the coupons were well written and contained novel ideas in hat designing and trimming.

The prize winner, in the opinion of the judges, who were unanimous in selecting the Quinn entry, was most remarkable for its quality of texture, shape and design, enforced by a clear-
cut description that accompanied the filling of the drawing made out with faint pencil and showing artistic values not always possessed by contestants in prize awards of this sort.

The hat to be created by the winner will be promptly made up so that she may wear it on Easter Sunday.
It will be something worth owning,
too, for the selection is to be made by the person carrying off the prize award.

The Sun thanks its readers for taking much interest in the Easter hat contest. It has caused much friendly rivalry and stimulated real interest in Lowell's popular spring millinery stores. It has also encouraged eager interest in new styles and creations and shows clearly that though the fashions of modern femininity change with the seasons, they always follow
the better paths in genuine styles,
colors, materials, shapes and values.

Pratt of 120 Mt. Vernon street, both freshmen at Smith college, are spending their Easter holidays at their homes.

The University Extension class in English Composition, starting tomorrow night, will be held in Room 29 of the Girls' Vocational school, instead of at the main building of the high school as stated in the advertisements of this course.

Joseph Shulard of 39 Front street enlisted in the navy as a motor ma-chineer at the local recruiting station yesterday. Chief Webster, who has been on duty here for the past several months, wishes to announce that he will be absent from his office on Tuesdays and Fridays, being detailed to Lawrence on those days.

All members of the Parent-Teachers association of the Greenhalge school, and especially those members who are on committees, are requested to be present at a special meeting to be held in the school Wednesday afternoon, March 28, at 3.30 o'clock. The meeting will be held to consider plans for the association entertainment.

At the initiation of about 800 new members in the Lowell Aerie of Eagles on next Sunday at the Memorial Auditorium, it is expected that fully 3,500 people will be present, as delegations from cities throughout Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire will attend. It is expected that the Bangles' band from Attleboro will furnish music for the affair. Caterer Lydon will serve a buffet luncheon to all attending, and has made plans for serving at least 3500.

LOCAL ELKS AT CHELSEA

Lowell Lodge, B.P.O.E., Entertains Disabled Veterans
at Naval Hospital

Cheery greetings and mementoes of the spring-time season followed by hallowed memories of former days and associations cherished with staunch loyalty by brothers of fraternal faith and callings, were showered in rare abundance upon more than 500 disabled World War veterans at the United States Naval hospital in Chelsea, yesterday. Under the auspices of Lowell Lodge No. 114, who journeyed in a body to the great rehabilitation quarters to distribute comforts, delicacies of the season and bountiful entertainment to the veterans who served their country in time of need.

The Lowell lodgemen lived up to their splendid reputation by furnishing one of the best entertainments ever

JOHN T. DURKIN,
Master of Ceremonies

provided for the soldier boys at the Chelsea institution. It was the happiest day of the season in all the swimming pools and halls, and the Lowell visitors enjoyed the visit just as much as the boys who fought the good fight and lived to tell the tale.

Among the notables who made the trip to Chelsea and took infinite pleasure in sharing in all the entertainment arrangements and program, was Mayor John J. Donovan.

Exalted Ruler John T. Durkin was master of ceremonies and presided
over the numerous features of attractive interest for the veterans with his usual excellent ability.

The program was under the direction of James E. Donnelly, the affair
having been arranged by Lowell Lodge
No. 114, B.P.O.E. Automobiles were used to convey the entire party from Lowell to the veterans' quarters, and the trip was made without untoward incident.

The descent of the battalions of Lowell Elks, ladies and official guests
headed by Mayor Donovan, on the Chelsea institution, delighted the veterans, who had the happiest day they could remember when the Elks marched into the building and extended formal greetings. The hospital "rounds" were made, and the 500 boys provided with cigarettes and chewing gum, among other personal gifts that pleased the veterans immensely.

The visitors were prepared to put on an excellent entertainment and arrangements were quickly provided for the concert and other numbers. Minor Dwyer's orchestra was there in full musical strength, playing old and new airs and offering the usual repertoire
of the season's very latest and catchiest selections with lively jazz for good measure.

The Codman Trio—Messrs. Maguire, DeKann and Couture—also gave a delightful entertainment, presenting songs with real melody that brightened the hearts and faces of the disabled veterans who listened to the splendid offerings rapidly.

The list of entertainers was a long one, and all played important parts in entertaining the Chelsea hospital inmates: Frank Marshall, Charles J.
Keyes, Edward F. Slattery, Walter
Brown, Paul Angelo, John J. McArdle, Frank McMartin, William McGrath, Edward Donohue, Tommy Fall, Ed Hosker, Benny Nelson, Harry Coulter,
Mrs. Alice L. McLaughlin, Mrs. Alice
Dion Angelo, Mrs. Nora Regan Long-
tin, Miss Bertha Dion, Miss Florence
Hague, Miss Frances Tighe, Miss Lillian Powers and Miss Colin Crowe.

The following members of the Lowell lodge provided automobiles for carrying the entertainers:
Hon. John J. Donovan, P. J. Gaulton, William Keeler, George Perreault, M.
W. Mulcahy, John Skeehan, Louis Lord,
John J. Henley, Henry Sullivan, William H. Mahan, Frank Maloney, Edward F. Slattery, John J. Moynihan, Ralph J. Harvey, Geo. H. Toya, Richard T. Robinson, past exalted ruler;
Daniel Martin and Wilfred Boulger.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Lincoln Tucker Prescott of Jamaica Plain and Miss Elizabeth T. or Carter of this city were married recently at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Edward J. Scott, at Reading. The ceremony was attended by several relatives and friends from this city. The couple will make their home at 43 Doubroff street, Reading.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Merrimack River is Receding—High Water Registered in the Concord

Less water flowing over the dam today.

The big rocks below the Pawtucket
dam told the story first this morning,
speaking of water height in the vicinity of the falls where the measuring instruments hang.

Much lower water was in order this morning, when at 9 a. m. the boards showed only 4.4 depth over the cap of the big dam. Yesterday the depth was 5 feet and one inch at noon-time.
No indications were apparent that high water would follow tonight or even tomorrow.

The river is practically clear of ice, heavy ice as far up as Tyngsboro. In places beyond Tyngsboro, the ice has broken up into sizable pieces and is moving down the river in sectional quantities, bringing no "jams" and causing no higher water at any point
within the vicinity of Lowell.

Today the damage caused by the heavy ice that tore away flashboards and bent the holding beams, is more noticeable with the water between 6 and 7 inches lower over the dam. At one place the water appeared so low
this morning that the big rocks that had been covered by the surging water
of several days ago, were standing stark naked again in the bed of the stream. The torrent is moving more swiftly than usual, according to "shore observers," but that is due to the force of the waters above.

Considerable heavy ice remains massed about the dam gatehouse and refused to break up or melt. Last night the mercury was 16 above at the dam and many broken pieces of thick ice remained rigidly frozen together this

Concord River High

High water is now recorded at the dam of the Concord river at Talbot mills in North Billerica, but no floods are looked for, as the water is being carried away nicely thus far, with no overflows or blockades. The usual stretches of meadow lands are inundated in some sections, being just what the farmers desire for their waters, bringing along debris and muddy deposits in the spring of the year, actually aid in cultivating soils in some sections and saving farmers much money when buying fertilizers.
Large hay crops are sometimes garnered along the river valleys as a result of spring freshets.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The police
today arrested five more men in connection with the $25,000 jewel robbery
at David Gumbiner's Broadway store
yesterday, making 10 arrests in all.
The police believe they have broken up the gang which has specialized in robbing jewelry stores by smashing
show windows.

TRIBUTE TO WAR HEROES

Memorial to Lowell Men Who Died in the Spanish-American War

Commander Walter R. Jones, Senior Vice-Commander John F. McBride, Junior Vice-Commander L. V. Parks, Past Commander Alexander D. Mitchell and Historian P. J. Burns were last night appointed a committee to present plans for the erection of a suitable memorial to Lowell men who gave up their lives in the Spanish-American war. The project, brought up at an interesting meeting of ten, Adelbert Ames camp in Memorial hall, was received with enthusiasm. A statue to be located in some public place in the city is desired by a majority of the veterans as a suitable memorial.

The department convention is to be held in Cambridge on April 17, 18 and 19. Plans for local Memorial Day observances are to be announced more completely at a later meeting.

Winners in numerous contests recently conducted by the local federated workers, were announced today, as follows:

R. Maner, 18 Lawson street, diamond ring; W. Peascoe, 42 Fruit street, toilet set; A. McCosker, 9 Webster street, smoking set; A. Vallancourt, 29 Lowell street, shoes; J. Ernest, Providence, R.
I., $10 gold piece.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 27.—Two prisoners confined in the hospital at the federal prison near here, saved
their way to freedom early today,
stopped at the home of W. H. Edwards, a railroad man in Lakewood Heights and when he refused to aid
in their escape, kidnapped him, brought him on a street car to the city where they left the car and made good their escape.

Top, Andrew P. Doyle of New Bedford recently presented the reference of Rep. John J. Heffernan of Brighton to the famous Boston "nursing bottles" and declared that although he was opposed to the bill he did not think it was necessary to besmirch a man's character in order to defeat it.

I know that the commissioner of public works is a man of high character," declared Rep. Doyle, "and I cannot but resent the statements of the member from Boston."

Rep. Heffernan asserted that the bill was instigated by the New England Road Builders association, the organization, he informed the house, that conducted the famous nursing bottles case. He also wished to remind the house, Rep. Heffernan said, "that the present commissioner of public works attended that dinner." He implied that Commissioner Williams was supporting the bill because of his friendship towards the road-builders.

Under the bill passed by the house yesterday the city of Lowell may extend all defunct billboards and signs from its highways. The bill, which now goes to the senate for action provides:

"No person, firm, association or corporation shall post, erect, display or maintain on any public way or on private property within public view from any highway, public park or reservation, any billboard or other advertising device, whether erected before August 25, 1920 or not, which advertises or calls attention to any business article, substance or any other thing, unless such bill-board or device conforms to the rules and regulations and ordinances or by-laws established under the preceding section; provided that this section shall not apply to signs or other devices erected and maintained in conformity with existing law and which advertise or indicate either the person occupying the premises in question or the business transacted thereon, or advertise the property itself or any part thereof as for sale or to let."

Glad Tidings for Parents and Other Relatives of Children Rescued From the Jaws of Death in Turkey—Mrs. Flora Stanton Kalk Brings 86 Children and 400 Orphan Girls Through 300 Miles of Turkish Turmoil to Peace and Safety in Syria

Down a road in Palestine, two women were running to tell the good news of a resurrection from death to life on an Easter morning, eighteen hundred and ninety years ago.

Down "Main street" in eighty-six towns of America, women, and men, will be hurrying during the Easter season of 1923 to share the good news of what to each of them is another resurrection—as the result of rescue by one American woman, a "gold star mother," in Turkey.

By her efforts, twenty-one fathers or mothers, twenty-five brothers or sisters, forty other persons in this country and one in Canada—eighty-six in all—will observe Easter with the knowledge that children whom they mourned as lost in Turkey have been "brought to life."

Mrs. Flora Stanton Kalk, of Omaha, Neb., brought the eighty-six children out through 300 miles of Turkish turmoil and mud with 400 orphan girls, who were from an American orphanage to peace and safety in Syria. With

COUNCIL WILL CONSIDER SALARY ORDINANCE THIS EVENING

Difference of Opinion Among Members as to Final Disposition of Measure—Action on Ordinance to Abolish Public Service Board Will Be Postponed—Other City Hall News

One of the most important items of business to come before the council at this evening's meeting is the salary ordinance, which was passed a few weeks ago by the council and which later was vetoed by Mayor Donovan. There is a difference of opinion among the members of the council as to the final disposition of the measure. Some assert that the ordinance will be passed over the mayor's veto, while others claim that the chief executive will be sustained in his action.

It was reported at city hall this morning that one member of the council, who originally voted in favor of the ordinance, would shift over to the minority and thus kill the measure, as ten votes are required to override the

Says All State Asks is Reasonable Interpretation of "Intoxicating Beverage"

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27.—Governor Smith today made public a letter replying to United States Senator Sineau L. Fess, republican, Ohio, who recently took exception to the action of the New York legislature in memorializing congress for modification of the Volstead act.

"We ask for a reasonable congressional interpretation of what constitutes an intoxicating beverage," was the keynote of the governor's letter, which declared that New York state was not asking laxity in enforcement of the federal prohibition laws.

"We have had illegal traffic in liquor and official corruption," said the governor's letter. "The latter is clearly proven by the brevity of the official life of many that represent the government in the enforcement of the Volstead act and their summary removal or transfer from this district is usually under the shadow of suspicion. Report Daugherty Has Given Girl Check to Pay Bill She Said Was Pressing

NEW YORK, March 27.—Assistant District Attorney Pecora and Police Inspector Coughlin today joined in an active search for Draper M. Daugherty, only son of the attorney general of the United States, to question him concerning reports that he was a friend of Dorothy Keenan, murdered model, and that he might know of a blackmailing ring using her as a decoy.

Daugherty, who served for two years with the British army before America entered the war, and then became a major in the American Expeditionary Force, was quoted by a New York morning newspaper as saying that he knew Miss Keenan well, had visited her apartment several times, and on one occasion had given her a check to pay a bill she told him was pressing.

He began to suspect last Thursday, after receiving a telephone call at a New York club, that he, like the mysterious "Mr. Marshall," identified Saturday as John Kearsley Mitchell, wealthy and socially prominent Philadelphia, was marked for plucking by

As the result of being overcome by gas at 63 C street, about 1.30 o'clock this afternoon, Joseph Dean, aged about 60 years, is now confined to the Corporation hospital, where his condition is considered serious.

The man was discovered by William H. Palmer, who lives in the same house. Smelling gas, he traced it to Dean's room and found a gas jet open and Dean stretched on the bed unconscious. The ambulance was summoned and removed him to the hospital.

As far as could be learned, Dean is not work today, and it is probable that the gas had been turned on for some time. It is said that he is married and has a wife living in Maine.

FRANCE MOURNS "DIVINE SARAH"

Stunned at Passing of Beloved Daughter, Regarded as Almost Immortal

Not Since Death of Victor Hugo Has France Been Stirred so Deeply

Was One of Greatest Ambassadors of French Art and Literature

PARIS, March 27.—(By the Associated Press) Madame Sarah Bernhardt her face looking strangely youthful in death, lay in state today in her home while hundreds of friends and admirers passed reverently by, many weeping, some dropping to their knees beside her and others placing flowers about her as last remembrances.

The body of the great tragedienne will lie in state today and all of tomorrow for the crowd waiting outside the Bernhardt home is evidence of the thousands who will come to say good-bye.

The funeral has been definitely set for Thursday afternoon from the Church of St. Francois de Sales, whose choir is Abbe Loutil, Bernhardt's close friend. She will be buried in the family tomb in the cemetery Pere La Chaise.

In compliance with her wishes, the funeral will be extremely simple, as she expressed a desire that there be a great many flowers, but no orations.

PARIS, March 27.—(By the Associated Press) All France mourns today for her well beloved daughter, Sarah Bernhardt, is dead.

Paris is stunned, scarcely believing that she who was regarded as almost immortal in more than one sense of the word, has passed away. It seems not too much to say that not since the death of Victor Hugo, has France been stirred so deeply.

As the academicien D. Freres observes in Figaro, Bernhardt probably shares with Hugo and Pasteur, the distinction of being the most illustrious person in the last hundred years of French history. "Divine Sarah" was undoubtedly one of the greatest ambassadors of French art and literature who ever lived.

It was thus befitting that the public which idolized her and which she, in turn, held so close to her heart, should have lingered reverently in the House of David, outside the house in soft spring night outside the house in

LOWELL MAN FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF STREET RAILWAY

Thomas J. Sayers Appointed Head of Lowell Division to Succeed Charles E. Whalen—Newly Appointed Official is Son of the Late Thomas Sayers, Who Was Superintendent of the Lowell Street Railway

THOMAS J. SAYERS

Thomas J. Sayers, for the past 22 years an employee of the local street railway, has been appointed superintendent of the Lowell division to succeed Charles E. Whalen, who resigned early in January of this year, and will assume his duties tomorrow. Mr. Sayers has been a car house foreman for several years and his appointment as superintendent will prove exceptionally popular with the car operators, the truck men, and the repair men with whom he has worked. Since Mr. Whalen's retirement, Supt. Albert E. Myers of the Chelsea division of the Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co. has been filling the job here in Lowell, but at the close of his appointment, Jan. 5, he was sent here for two months only and he will return to Chelsea.

Mr. Sayers is still recuperating from a severe attack of appendicitis which necessitated an operation and the doctors state that it was only an unusually strong constitution which carried him through his illness, as he was unconscious for 17 days at one time. He entered the hospital on December 24, and was not discharged until March 9 of this year.

In accordance with recent instructions issued by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank Goodwin, Judge Enright today imposed a direct sentence of two months to the house of correction on Philip Vallancourt of Springfield for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. In the majority of similar cases previous to this time, the court was inclined to extend leniency to such misdemeanants, fines being imposed as a general rule. Vallancourt appealed the sentence this morning and also a charge of drunkenness. His companion, Raymond E. Peany of Hudson, the first Monday in April.

That the recent complaints of several Lowell women to the effect that pickpockets are operating with considerable success in this city of late, have some foundation in fact, is evidenced from the mysterious disappearance of money and valuables, said to have been extracted from the pockets of Saturday shoppers in the downtown district last week. Although Captain David Portie of the local criminal investigation bureau suspects that the recent revival of the sleight-of-hand game in this city is purely the work of amateurs, probably boys, the many complaints which have reached

Here Comes the Easter Bride!

This is just a story—as old as the hills—yet ever new—a story about a girl named Mary who got married and lived happily ever afterwards.

MARY bought her wedding invitations at our Stationery Shop on the street floor. She selected Non Plate Engraving because it meant a big saving in cost and every cent counts when one gets married!

HER mother's loving hands helped her make her wedding gown of Bridal Satin and Chantilly lace. She purchased this beautiful material in the dress goods section and it cost her $3.98 a yard. The lace came from our lace section and while Chantilly is marked at various prices, Mary finally decided on one at $4.08 a yard.

BY the way—she used a Standard Pattern No. 3742, size 16. It required just two and five-eighths yards of 56-inch material with one and three-eighths yards of lace.

HER bridal veil which she will treasure in years to come is of plain white silk net. Lovely in its simplicity! Moderate in price! $1.98 the yard.

SHE found a bridal wreath of orange blossoms in our ribbon shop on the street floor. It was just what she wanted. Cost but $2.50.

"VANITY FAIR" Silk Underwear was always Mary's favorite, so it seemed perfectly natural for her to buy Vanity Fair Silken Undergarments for her trousseau. We carry a complete line in our Knit Underwear section on the street floor.

IF Mary cried on her wedding day—no one saw those tears but the tiny square of lace she tucked in her glove.

HER Gloves! Mary was so particular about them. She decided on a pair of fine French kid, 16 button length, priced $6.00.

MARY selected the finest of silk hose in our Hosiery shop. Seems as if she bought at least three dozen in black, grey, brown and white. But one can't have too many stockings!

MARY's path in married life is going to be a joyous one for she is going to walk happily in her Queen Quality Shoes. Prices on Queen Quality shoes are $7.00 and $7.50.

HER Corsets of silk broche were selected in our Corset Shop on the second floor. Experienced corsetieres properly fit you to the corset that your figure requires.

WHEN Mary went on her honeymoon she wore a beautiful three-piece suit of navy twill cord and carried a Cape of Lustrona that had a decidedly luxurious air. Needless to say she bought both the suit and cape in our Fashion Section—second floor.

I COULD tell you more about Mary's clothes—her shoes, her stockings, her hat, her handkerchiefs, her umbrella, her gloves, her luggage, about the beautiful gifts she received—and most of these came from the Bon Marche.)

But I'm not going to.

She lived happily ever afterwards! That's all.

MITCHELL AND WIFE MEET

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Kennedy Mitchell, the Philadelphia millionaire, who was the mysterious "Mr. Marshall" of the Keenan murder case in New York, met his wife today for their first interview since his connection with the case became publicly known.

The meeting took place at the Union station upon the arrival of Mrs. Mitchell from Florida on the private car of her father, E. T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia. As he came up the steps of the car, she appeared in the doorway, and held out both her hands to him. They then disappeared inside the car which later in the day was to resume its journey northward.

Mr. Mitchell, who had kept his presence in Washington carefully concealed, reached the station just before the Florida train arrived. He would not talk to newspapermen.

It was said the car probably would be attached to some train leaving later in the day and that those aboard probably would go either to the Mitchell home in Philadelphia or to the Stotesbury country place near Baltimore.

A secretary and another man, said to be Mitchell's attorney, accompanied him when he met the train. As the private car came to a standstill, Mr. Stotesbury alighted, shook hands with his son-in-law, and without a word escorted her to the platform to meet Mrs. Mitchell.

Stotesbury Ignores Papers

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 27.—E. T. Stotesbury, father-in-law of J. K. Mitchell, identified in the Dorothy Keenan slaying case in New York, refused to read newspaper clippings in connection with the late yesterday when he passed through Savannah on his return trip to the north, according to his daughter, Mrs. Mitchell.

Mrs. Mitchell also declined to discuss the case or read the clippings.

The driver of the stolen car ran away from the scene of the accident and has not yet been found.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and get better results than you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The sun and the circumstances surrounding them tend to substantiate the theory that experienced and skilled pickpockets are active in the city. It has been estimated that no less than a dozen of them are at work in the city's shopping area. An instance is reported of a well-known operative who, after receiving her hard-earned weekly wages, entered a Merrimack street department store for the purpose of purchasing household and other essentials and when she went to pay the clerk, found that her purse and its contents were missing. Realizing that she had been victimized, the woman broke down under the thought that her week's labor had been lost. Several other similar incidents have been brought to light in the past few weeks and while in some cases the loss may be attributed to carelessness, the frequency of such occurrences is indicative of professional pickpocketing on the part of the guilty person or persons.

To discourage the practice as much as possible, or at least to make the alleged operation all the more difficult, local police authorities wish to warn the women of Lowell to exercise care in placing their money. There have been instances where the extraction of purses was somewhat simplified in view of the fact that some women have allowed their pocketbooks to protrude from their coat pockets in a very conspicuous manner. It is imperative, especially at this season of the year when department and other stores are thronged with Easter shoppers, that people use more than ordinary discretion in guarding their valuables. It is requested by the police that any future losses be reported to the proper authorities immediately.

Today concerning Mr. Sayers' appointment, stated as follows:

"Mr. Sayers is a native of Lowell, was educated in the Lowell schools and has been connected with the local street railway company for the past 21 years, and previous to his appointment as superintendent he had been in charge of the Middlesex street car barn. Mr. Sayers is the son of Thos. J. Sayers who was superintendent of the Lowell street railway for a number of years, starting with the old Lowell & Suburban St. Ry., the original railway enterprise in this city.

"Mr. Sayers is a member of the local lodge of Elks and has a host of friends who wish him success in his new position.

"Mr. A. E. Myers, who has been acting superintendent pending the appointment of a permanent superintendent, will return to his former position as superintendent of the Chelsea division, in accordance with arrangements that were made when he came to Lowell. During the short time that Mr. Myers has been in Lowell he has shown exceptional ability as a superintendent, having expert knowledge of all of the operating details incident to the operation of a transportation system, and in returning to his former position he takes with him the best wishes of all of the employees of the Lowell division."

In His Father's Footsteps

In this case it seems that the position of superintendent is in natural line of succession for Mr. Sayers' father was a starter and superintendent of the Lowell division, holding the superintendent's position from 1903 until 1905, when he left Lowell and went to St. Louis to work for one of the large packing houses there. Mr. Sayers' father, before his work as starter, was a driver on one of the old horse cars that used to jog over our streets.

"Young Tommy," as he is known by the older employees of the road, started with the street railway in 1905 as a waterboy and has since been employed as a pitman, repairing cars, as a starter in the square, as an inspector and as car house foreman, the position which he was filling until his illness overcame him. He was on duty in the square with Walter Hickey, and became well known to the thousands of patrons of the electric cars through his unflinching courtesy and attention to their demands while he had charge of the hooking of cars, and made up the lists of work for the spare men.

Mr. Albert E. Myers, who has been temporary superintendent in Lowell, will return to Chelsea within a week. Since his arrival here he has done much to keep the cars going through one of the worst winters that Lowell has encountered since the advent of electric cars. Since his arrival in Lowell he can truthfully state that no line has been left completely for any length of time, and he has, during the severe snow storms, gone out on the plows where traffic was held up and superintended the clearing of the tracks. Many truck drivers running from Lowell to Lawrence or Boston will remember him for his fair treatment of them and the work he has done in getting them out of the track, with the aid of snow-plows when it seemed that otherwise they would be frozen in for the winter. He is one of the quiet, unobtrusive type of men and his leaving will be regretted by many who know him recently and by those who worked with him on the local division in the years prior to 1905. One of the odd features of Mr. Sayers' appointment here is that Mr. Myers was a starter on the Lowell division when Mr. Sayers' father was superintendent.

Catherine Beattie, who was found guilty of larceny in the district court yesterday, and whose case was continued to await the arrival of her brother from Woburn, was today sentenced to the Massachusetts Reformatory for Women. She is alleged to have stolen a fur coat, dress, watch, chain and other articles from a local lodging house. When arrested, she gave the name of Dora Hall.

Leo P. McCormack, 17, charged with the larceny of a bicycle, the property of Clyde Ray, was found guilty of the charge and bonds fixed at $300 for his appearance for sentence tomorrow. McCormack was arrested soon after the complaint was issued and said he took the bicycle to look for work in New Hampshire. When the officers went to arrest him this morning, he attempted to escape by jumping from a window, but was taken into custody before he could effect a getaway.

Catherine Emmott pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was given a sentence of three months to the house of correction, suspended for a year. Officer Charles Hamilton testified that the woman had neglected her household and forced her boy to steal in order to obtain food. She was told that her next appearance would not be a direct sentence.

Council Will Consider Salary Ordinance This Evening (Continued)

Mayor's veto and by the shifting of this particular council, the vote would stand nine to six and thereby the ordinance would be killed.

From other quarters it was learned that the shifting of one councillor to the minority side will not affect the vote any, for those in favor of the ordinance feel certain that they will be able to swing one vote from the minority to the majority. Be that as it may, the ordinance will be brought up for discussion again tonight and unless something unforeseen happens, final action will be taken.

JEWELERS' ORDINANCE

Another matter to be called to the attention of the council this evening is the ordinance recently filed with the city clerk by Councilor Daly, relative to the prohibiting of auction sales of old gold, silver, jewelry, or other words, a measure which is aimed at itinerant vendors, who come here from other cities to conduct auction sales of cheap jewelry. The ordinance will be read and allowed to follow to the committee on ordinances. Councilor Daly will request that a representative of the Lowell Retail Jewelers' association be invited to appear before the council and give his views on the matter.

PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD

Because of an oversight, the ordinance calling for the creation of various city departments, presented by Councilor Daly, which was scheduled to come up for action this evening, will have to lay over until the next meeting. This ordinance, in plain words, is for the abolition of the public service board. It was presented at the council some time ago and referred to the committee on ordinances, which two weeks ago reported it adversely. Mr. Daly then requested and the request was granted, that the city clerk be instructed to advertise it with the understanding that it would be brought up again before the council for consideration. It was learned today that through an oversight the ordinance was not advertised and as a result no action will be taken this evening.

LISTING BOARD BUDGET

The supplementary budget for the listing board, which is now being prepared by the members will be ready for this evening's meeting, so it was stated this morning. Although the exact figures of the budget were not given out, it is said the amount will be in the vicinity of $6000. This will include $4500 for increases in salaries for the members of the board as provided by the bill recently enacted by

The members of the board conferred with the board of assessors yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of securing data relative to the listing of polls. The assessors cheerfully supplied the board with general information concerning the work of the assistant assessors used by the board, and other materials used by the assistant assessors in the performance of their duties. The polls will be listed by police officers and it was stated this morning that all probably two officers will be detailed for each precinct and in larger districts three. The officers will start on their new work next Monday, under the supervision of the chief of police, who is chairman of the listing board.

Piggly Wiggly Head De-nounces "Wall Street" for "Unethical Methods"

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 27.—Clarence Saunders, president of Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., whose stock has been the centre of a New York stock exchange sensation since its flotation, today terminated a week ago in catching short sellers shy approximately 25,000 shares, today was checking on the time the shares delivered in settlement were acquired by brokers making the deliveries.

Saunders proposed to bring suit against "each of the brokers who was at default" and against the New York stock exchange.

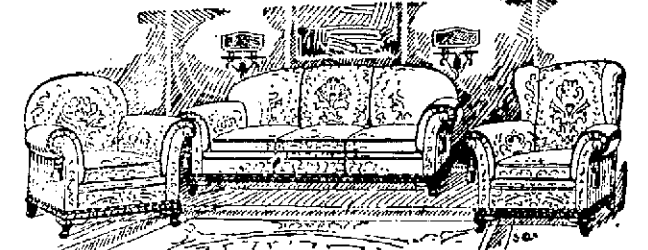

"One of the allegations of my suit," he said, "will be that I was not delivered the stock which was due me, as I claim that no stock purchased after March 20 was a good and valid delivery of stock against my purchases prior to that time, and in addition thereto, I will sue the New York stock exchange for conspiracy."

Saunders again denounced the exchange and "Wall Street" for what he termed "trickery and unethical methods" and declared: "The fight has just begun."

POPE MOVES TO SAVE PRELATES

Vatican Deeply Affected by Death Sentences Passed Upon Church Heads

Report Pope Exerting His Personal Influence to Save Lives of Prelates

ROME, March 27.—(By the Associated Press) The Vatican is deeply affected by the death sentences passed upon Archbishop Zepinski and Monsignor Butchewitch in Moscow, and it is understood Pope Pius is exerting his personal influence to save the lives of the two prelates.

When the cases came up recently the Holy See interposed its good offices through the Russian minister here, and the Soviet government responded that the accused Catholics would be tried with perfect "dispassionateness."

The extremity to which the court went in imposing penalties thus has caused the greatest disappointment.

Poland Takes Action
WARSAW, March 27.—When Premier Sikorski learned that Archbishop Zepinski, head of the Roman Catholic church in Russia and the 16 priests tried with him had been found guilty by the Moscow court, he sent for Leonid Obolenski, the Soviet minister to Poland, and informed him that the Polish government and population observed with anxiety the Soviet attitude toward the Catholic church, and the Polish ministry.

The premier asserted that representation of the Russian government had assured the Polish minister at Moscow that the trial was only a formality without importance.

"The Soviet judicial authorities," he continued, "left the condemned men at complete liberty for an entire year, arresting them only 10 days ago. Then they pronounced the death sentence to be executed within 72 hours. The court arguments showed the trial to be purely political."

Premier Sikorski asked M. Obolenski to convey this declaration to the Soviet government immediately.

Men Who Attended Congress of International Chamber of Commerce Start Home

Elbert H. Gary Had Talk With Hugo Stinnes, the German Industrial Magnate

ROME, March 27.—(By the Associated Press) The American delegates to the congress of the international chamber of commerce, which closed here Saturday, have now nearly all left Rome. Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation who had a talk with Hugo Stinnes, the German industrial magnate during the latter's brief visit here, just after the close of the conference, went to Naples yesterday and sailed thence for Spain.

Herr Stinnes left Rome last evening after an exchange of views with Signor Finzi, under-secretary of the interior, acting for Premier Mussolini, and passed through Bologna today on his way back to Berlin.

While in Rome Herr Stinnes stopped at the same hotel at which the American delegates to the chamber of commerce congress were guests. The local press considers his coming was due to the presence of so many influential figures of the commercial and financial world, the American especially, and was particularly interested in the American suggestion for the calling of an international economic conference with a view to solving the reparations, inter-allied debt and stabilization of exchange questions. He is said to have expressed the belief that such a conference should be held in the United States as best adapted for the settling of these questions in the remoteness from the influence of the various conflicting European interests.

Herr Stinnes is reported to have seen Pope Pius and Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, but to have failed in his efforts to confer with Premier Mussolini, the latter delegating Signor Finzi to meet the German capitalist. The premier himself went to Milan last night for conferences of an international character.

Smuggling of whiskey across the Canadian border has become a notorious abuse.

"People who for years were used to a harmless glass of beer have been put upon a whiskey diet. The federal and state governments with all their power are unable to stop the abuse. It is a matter of common knowledge that in a state as big as New York, the police force required for proper enforcement would be entirely beyond the means of the people."

"I am impressed by the figures that you give of the vote in your own state on 2.75 per cent beer, as well as the vote of the states of Michigan and California. Why not settle the question for all time and provide for that vote in every state, with congress fixing 2.75 per cent, as a maximum alcoholic content and allowing the popular vote to fix the minimum? That, surely, is democratic government."

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Jumbo Compound and 8 ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—Adv.

Door of Exit Closed
When war crashed down on the near east in 1914, it shut the door of exit from Turkey upon a majority of the eighty-six children. They were about to sail with their mothers to join the fathers who had preceded them to this country in the effort to set up another home in a free land. In the experience which followed, the mothers, after long sacrifices to keep the children alive, did not survive and the girls were gathered up by the Americans. In other cases, according to Turkish movements, which followed the Turkish army through snows by winter and through parched areas by summer in forced removals, separated the children from their parents. The fathers and brothers were drawn into the Turkish army and a few of the mothers escaped, giving the children up for lost after fruitless searches.

Reunions of the eighty-six long-separated girls and relatives may be expected by June, according to near east relief officials in Syria, as rapidly as the parents or others provide the children with proper affidavits and funds for passage. It may be that a party of them will be sent to the happy relatives at one time.

the Boulevard Pereire, where she had lived for 38 years, sharing the vigil with the family within. After midnight, when the theatre were closed, came the people of the stage to pay tribute to their illustrious comrade. Among them were Sacha Guitry, the playwright, who had a filial respect for Bernhardt, Cecile Sorel, Rachel Boyer and a host of other stars. Included in the number also was James Hackett, who, according to L'Eclair, cabled President Harding requesting him to announce officially to the people of the United States, the death of "the greatest artist in the world."

Bernhardt lies on her bed, covered by the flowers she loved so well. Tall candles burn at either side and at the foot of her couch, and in accordance with French custom, a crucifix and a bowl of holy water stand on a little table nearby.

The family this morning was still too overcome with grief to discuss the funeral arrangements. Bernhardt occasionally expressed the desire to be buried within the grounds of her home at Belle Island, a romantic spot atop storm-torn cliffs that overlook the Atlantic. However, it has not yet been decided whether she will be laid to rest there or in the family tomb in Pere La Chaise cemetery, Paris.

In any event there will be an impressive ceremony in Paris on either Thursday or Friday, and there is a strong sentiment in favor of holding this at the expense of the nation. As an officer of the Legion of Honor, Mme. Bernhardt is entitled to burial with military honors but the public feels that she should be interred with the pomp befitting her incalculable services to French art.

It later was arranged that the body should lie in state at the home beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The funeral probably will be held at the church of St. Francois de Sales, but inasmuch as this is "the week of the dead" preceding Easter, there can be no high mass.

Mme. Bernhardt's most valuable effects are being taken out of the house by her son, Maurice, and sent elsewhere for safe keeping.

Chamber Filled With Flowers
PARIS, March 27.—(By the Associated Press) The chamber in which Bernhardt's body lies is already filled with flowers brought by hundreds of her admirers. The first bunch of lilies was placed on the bier in the early morning by her granddaughter.

Abbe Louill, the great actor's close friend for many years, remarked that in death she had "recovered the beauty of her youth."

"Her expression," he added, "is one of peace."
The visitors' book at the residence before noon contained 300 names, including those of personages in official, private, business and theatrical life.

Popular in New Orleans
NEW ORLEANS, Mar. 27.—Because of the large French speaking population here, there probably was no city in America where Sarah Bernhardt was more popular than in New Orleans.

During her last engagement here she took part in a great parade arranged by the Liberty loan campaign committee.

When the parade started rain threatened. Her physician advised against the actress participating, but Bernhardt insisted, remarking: "My soldiers in France are standing knee deep in blood and grime and I shall ride in the parade if no one else does."

REMARKABLE CAREER
Madam Sarah Bernhardt, who at 70 years of age seemed still a girl, was known to the world as "the world's greatest actress." What a career there might have been to this estimate, and however far her detractors ventured in their attempts to minimize her right to that distinction, the numberless admirers of the "divine Sarah" remained convinced that never before had the stage produced an actress capable of soaring to such heights in the realm of emotional drama.

The work of Mme. Bernhardt was host where a theme afforded the greatest opportunity for a display of her powerful emotions. At the height of her career this form of acting, based principally on love, hate and jealousy, held the predominant place now dedicated to character delineations, and Bernhardt never was surpassed, her critics say, in this emotional school. Hundreds of parts she either created or created to suit herself, seldom being content to suit them as interpreted by others.

Praised by Three Generations

Three generations have praised and even worshipped the art of Bernhardt, and hundreds upon hundreds of people around the world have thronged to see and marvel at her acting without understanding the French language, which she invariably employed upon the stage. Once, in Rio de Janeiro, she was called before the curtain more than 200 times by a wildly enthusiastic audience, and many times in other parts of the world she was urged to answer scores of curtain calls at a single performance.

The long life-story of Bernhardt is almost legendary. Closely woven with dramatic incident, off as well as on the stage, it was set down by herself in a lengthy volume published many years ago, and, as one of her critics has said, "through the pages of the book peers the face of a woman, a little tired, weary of her own reputation, and blessed with more than her share of the vanities of her sex." As she and others have told the story, it is summed up here:

The date of her birth, the record of which was destroyed in the flames of the commune in Paris, was commonly accepted as October 22, 1843. Her mother was Dutch and Jewish, and her natural father a French official.

As a child Bernhardt spent much of her time with relatives in Paris, and at the age of 12 was sent to the Grand Champ convent, Versailles, where she made her debut in a little mimic play given by the children. Even at this early age, the girl was said to have displayed

WASHINGTON, March 27.—More than 1,500,000 aliens eligible for American naturalization already have been directed to citizenship training classes established by local school authorities throughout the United States in co-operation with the bureau of naturalization of the department of labor. The classes are conducted at night and enable the aliens not only to obtain free the educational training necessary for approval of their citizenship petitions, but also to get information that will lead them to better jobs, higher pay and improved living conditions.

The bureau has established a service through which candidates for citizenship are invited to attend the classes provided by local authorities for their instruction, and their names and addresses also are forwarded to the public school officials. The number of foreign residents thus reached, it is said, is necessarily limited to those who have declared their intention to become citizens, since the labor department lacks the names and addresses of those who have not filed petitions. It is believed, nevertheless, that free instruction facilities have been made available to many others through measures taken by local Americanization organizations, Boy Scouts, Young Men's Christian associations, chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution and other patriotic and civic societies.

Cards giving the records of the aliens attending the classes, bureau officials declare, add to the value of their work from a public viewpoint in that they give a basis for complete community surveys to determine needs in Americanization work.

The bureau receives almost daily letters from candidates for citizenship and Americanization workers praising the service, and also gets a number of reports on the work of allies taking advantage of the courses. Some of these reports, it is said, show the progress made by candidates over 60 years of age who had resided in this country many years without taking steps to become citizens.

SWEDEN CONSIDERS BILL TO AID WOMEN

STOCKHOLM, March 27.—The latest step in the achievement of political equality between women and men in Sweden is the renewed submission of a bill to the riksdag providing that women shall be admitted on an equal footing with men to all governmental posts, including the consular and diplomatic service, but excluding the army and navy, and certain other positions, such as those of officials in prisons or in asylums for inebriates. It also provides that women may be ordained ministers of the church and may be installed as such in any congregation where there is at least one man serving as pastor. One member of the committee which drafted the bill held that only unmarried women should be allowed to preach, but no such provision was adopted.

When this bill was submitted to last year's riksdag it was passed in principle by the second chamber and was lost in the first chamber by being only three votes short of the necessary majority. It is considered likely that it will pass of this session.

Sweden was one of the first nations in the world to allow women in her national law-making body, and her feminists can now boast of four women in the second chamber and one woman in the first chamber of the riksdag.

KING OF GREECE PREY TO GREIFS AND FEARS

ATHENS, March 27.—Americans who have recently visited the palace describe King George as a lonely, disconsolate young man. The utter collapse of the Greek army, the Smyrna catastrophe, the unexampled misery of hundreds of thousands of refugees, the internal convulsions in Greece, the execution of the former cabinet members and the overthrow and later death of his father, King Constantine, have left a deep impress on the youthful monarch. Added to these troubles is the continued delicate health of his wife, Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, whose life more than once has been in danger.

The king is closely watched by the revolutionary committee, and all his official acts must have its approval. The latest step of this stern and uncompromising body was to acquiesce in the arrest of the king's two of the late King Constantine's relatives so that they would not fall into the hands of his successor, the present king.

The committee also seized the splendid palace at Corfu built by William Iliadoulou, and for many years used by the Greek royal family as a summer home. The palace is now occupied as a hospital by the American Near East Relief organization. The use of the building for the treatment of contagious diseases has greatly grieved the king, and he has appealed to the Americans to secure other quarters.

So many restrictions are put upon the new sovereign by the revolutionary regime that he is little more than a figurehead. The Greek people always have been uncertain and fickle in their political and dynastic leanings, and they seem to be quite indifferent to the young king. As a factor in the affairs of the government, American observers declare, King George is quite negligible. He spends all his time in seclusion at the palace, receiving old friends, handing out decorations, and signing documents prepared by the revolutionary government.

Recent visitors to the palace represent him as being eager to give up the lonely and uncertain job of king. But he is too well aware of the fact that any such action would probably lose the throne to the present royal family, which is of Danish-German-Russian origin. The next in line of succession to the kingship is young Prince Paul. But many persons believe George will be Greece's last sovereign, as a noticeable sentiment for a republic is developing among the Greek people.

Greece, indeed, is so stunned and prostrated by recent events that she is rather indifferent as to who shall take the reins of government. The people seem willing to give the present revolutionary government the fullest opportunity of getting Greece out of the mire of commercial, military and national prostration. But they are not at all sure that the committee will be equal to its enormous and difficult task. They are also willing to continue George as their king so long as he does not go beyond his constitutional limitations, and avoids the fatal foreign alliance of his father, the late King Constantine.

Greatest of all Greece's hopes is a loan from the United States. Without this assistance she can hardly rehabilitate her ruined fortunes, her shattered army, her tottering economic fabric. Twelve years of intermittent

war, of mal-administration, of unfortunate foreign policies and of continued dynastic changes have left the country and people in a state of despair.

CENSUS TAKERS MEET VIOLENCE

LONDON, March 27.—The trials and tribulations of a staff of some 2,000,000 census takers to find out there were approximately 319,000,000 people in India in 1921, have been related by J. Marten, census commissioner for India. The employment of this huge army of enumerators, said Mr. Marten, was necessitated by the fact that, owing to the illiteracy of the population, the employment of the household as enumerator of his household was impossible. He told of instances of enumerators being stabbed by suspicious Hindus, who considered the census takers too inquisitive. Some of the natives, on the other hand, resorted to violence when bribery failed to induce the census takers to make false entries showing that the natives enjoyed higher stations in the social scale than was really the case.

The census, Mr. Marten said, showed a gain of 1.3 per cent over the population of 1911. The average density of population over the whole of India was 177 to the square mile. The maximum density of any province was in Bengal, where there were found to be 608 to the square mile.

EXPLAINS HOW CLOUDS ARE DRIVEN AWAY

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Rain-making and the dissipation of fogs and clouds by a process invented by Dr. Francis Warren is a scientific possibility and the further perfection of apparatus no doubt will prove its feasibility, said Dr. R. H. Moore recently to the Associated Press. Dr. Moore is chief chemist of the United States bureau of mines. While he has not yet had opportunity to see Dr. Warren's apparatus in operation, Dr. Moore has been interested in the method since its inception and has had faith in the soundness of the scientific principle on which it is based.

"The rain-making method consists in charging a dielectric (a material that retains an electric charge), such as fine sand, with a static charge, and then sprinkling this sand over the top of a cloud by means of an airplane," said Dr. Moore. "As everyone knows, clouds consist of minute particles of water, a large portion of which are charged. All the particles in the same cloud are charged either negatively or positively and, therefore, as they carry the same sign, they repel each other when they come into too close contact. This militates against the coalescence of the particles into a size that allows them to fall through the atmosphere in the form of rain. Anything which will dissipate the charge on the particles will help coalescence and, therefore, will assist in precipitation."

already made, but I have read the affidavits of the observers. From these it appears that a single airplane has been able to dissipate a cloud a mile or two long and over 1000 feet deep in a few minutes by using about 100 pounds of charged sand.

"The apparatus which Dr. Warren uses for charging the sand is not by any means perfected, and he is able only to get 12,000 or 14,000 volts on the particles," Dr. Moore continued. "In addition it has not been possible, so far, to charge more than a small portion of the sand grains. I see no reason why the voltage cannot be increased, with improved apparatus, up to 30,000 volts or even more, and also why the percentage of charged grains cannot be greatly increased. Under such conditions a still greater effect should be obtained with a given weight of sand."

"The work is still in its initial stages and it is difficult to state definitely its future possibilities. No trials have been made on fog, as the conditions have not been favorable for an airplane to go up in a fog and make the test."

"Fogs are a combination of mist or clouds in contact with the earth, mixed with more or less smoke. Whether it will be more difficult or easier to get rid of such fogs than has been the case with clouds high up in the air, is yet to be determined, but the methods certainly show great promise and justify complete investigation by a satisfactory series of trials with improved apparatus. If fogs can be dissipated, the result would be of tremendous value to cities such as London and San Francisco, besides being of great advantage to the air service in connection with its flying fields."

HONOR PRINCE OF WALES

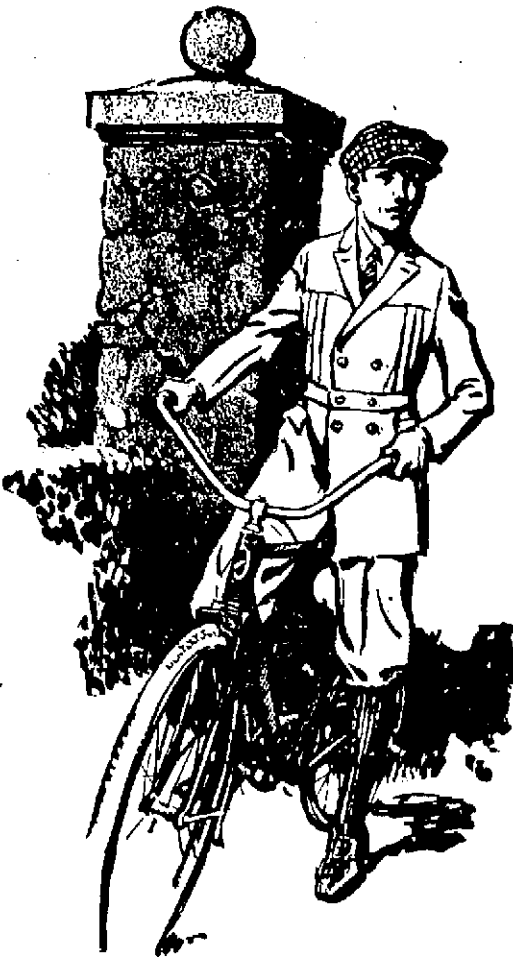

LONDON, March 27.—The prince of Wales, who for some time has had 15 sets of initials in the wake of his name, now has 16. His latest decoration was created and conferred at the recent dinner of the American university union, at which he was the honor guest. The new initials are O.O.U., which, it was explained by Dr. George E. MacLennan, former chancellor of Nebraska university, stand for "one of us."

The prince, described at the banquet by Lady Astor as one of the best Americans she ever knew, told the former college men and women gathered about him that he hoped soon to see a British student resident in each of the 54 colleges in the United States holding membership in the American university union in Europe.

INDUSTRIAL MILITIA WOULD END STRIKES

CHICAGO, March 27.—Trained industrial reserves as a co-ordinate branch of the national defense, thus providing a militia of industry to preserve industrial peace as the militia of arms preserves order, is the cardinal principle of what has become known as the "Rockford Plan" for curbing strikes, according to its author, Prof. Henry Martyn Herrick, associate professor of modern languages at Rockford college.

The plan is described by Professor Herrick as a "challenge to union labor to mend its ways," but Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, characterizes the plan as "impracticable, absurd, a dream and perhaps a nightmare."

"One is strangely impressed with the brilliancy of the new idea of an 'economic reserve' or army to break strikes of organized wage earners. When one seeks to find the sources from which this economic reserve is to be conscripted, one is left in complete darkness and confusion," said Mr. Woll.

"Where is he going to find these voluntary strike breakers?" In outlining his plan, Prof. Herrick states:

"I recalled first a question asked by the acting governor of Illinois of an official of the miners' union during the coal strike:

"May they dig coal for the hospitals?" was the question. 'No,' replied the official.

"Our defense has been wholly military. We have defended our borders, but not our vital industries. We must supply the lack by making trained industrial reserve a co-ordinate branch of the national defense. The militia of industry will preserve industrial peace as the militia of arms preserves order. It will take but few training reserves to defend our vital industries such as mining and transportation. Industrial unpreparedness is as inexcusable as military."

"Strikes to borrow good old medical terms, are either laudable or malleable. Strikes in vital industries are malignant. The laudable strike is usual in Lincoln's day has become rare. You see therefore why our six million farmers do not strike."

"But to organized labor the strike is the breath of life."

"The government, co-operating with the entire educational system, will offer a brief intensive course in one or more of the vital industries under the new plan. This will add purpose and aim to education and put the stamp on citizenship. No drafting will be required, for volunteers will flock to the service in allegiance to their own even many from the unions to escape bad leadership."

"Here is the safeguard against socialism. The folly of admitting undesirable aliens to do the work we should do ourselves will be apparent. The Boy Scouts will be ideal pioneers of the new way."

"The plan has made a good start. In Rockford, its power and promise were quickly recognized. It has received attention at the White House and has been placed on file for reference in the department of labor, in the division of conciliation. The plan strikes terror to the heart of the extortioner."

Mr. Woll, in commenting on the plan, said:

"Prof. Herrick would leave labor free to organize and to strike if it wants to, but he would set up an economic reserve, founded on voluntary conscription, that could be drawn upon whenever and wherever the organized workers dared exercise their refusal to give service to the employing interests."

"This idea is new only in that he would have the state, instead of the private employer, venture into the organization of strikebreaking, by organizing a station organization of strikebreakers under the more elusive term of 'economic reserves.'"

"Somehow the workers of America are loath to give up their rights as freemen. Prof. Herrick's idea is interesting because of his all-absorbing desire to protect employers and industries and in his failure to give

EASTER MONDAY PARTY AT AUDITORIUM

On next Monday evening in the Memorial Auditorium the Mathew Tompkins Institute will present its annual Easter Monday party, featured by what its members and large following regard as the prettiest event of the season, the "Pageant Beautiful." Pupils of the dressmaking department of the evening vocational classes, under the leadership of their teachers, will pit their skill and ingenuity against one another in this costume march, and a keen contest is forecasted.

With the intention of showing the people of Lowell the great progress made in the evening schools in this supply the lack of vocational training, the teachers have entered into this competition with fine enthusiasm. Their efforts have been ably seconded by their pupils, glad of the opportunity to make public display of their skill in designing and fashioning pretty and unusual costumes. Their spare time has been given freely to this purpose, and it is believed that the array of costumes will be the finest ever exhibited in this city.

The costume march is the main, but not the exclusive feature of the Mathew party. A number of well known entertainers will participate in a well balanced program which will precede the pageant. Most of the artists scheduled to appear scored hits in the January "Musical Minstrel Whirl," and their specialties next Monday evening will be equally pleasing. Following the pageant general dancing will begin and will be enjoyed until 1 a. m.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A miscellaneous shower was held last evening at the home of Mrs. John J. Bowers, 21 Laurel street in honor of Miss Anna Powers, a popular young lady of the South End. Miss Powers was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and congratulations. Games and entertainment numbers were enjoyed until a late hour. The following girls had charge of the shower: Misses May Dunlavey, Katherine Dunlavey and Mrs. Lawrence Hayden. Miss Powers is soon to become the bride of Mr. Chas. Donovan of Lawrence.

HERRING PLENTIFUL IN BRITAIN

LONDON, March 24.—Huge shoals of young herring swarmed recently in the English channel, but the fishermen stood idly on the beach and watched them swim away.

The herring market on shore is overstocked from previous catches and the price is so low that it does not pay the men to bring in any more.

any consideration to the protection of human life and the advancement of the human interests of that large group of producers—the wage-earning class. For the workers to resent wrong, for them to organize to protect themselves against economic enslavement, for them to aspire to a better life and to the higher things in life, evidently is all wrong, according to the ideas of Prof. Herrick.

"Why continue the unjustified and uneconomic assumption that the possessors of wealth can do no wrong and need not be restrained while the non-possessors of wealth are always wrong and need always to be regulated and restrained? Are we to condone the conduct of those making it imperative for the workers to protest against their continued degradation and slavery and by the only power in their possession—the strike?"

"Does Prof. Herrick intend that there should be maintained constantly an army of unemployed, but trained and paid for by the state? Or does he intend that our princes of finance shall voluntarily contribute and assign part of their working force to this economic reserve? In either event Prof. Herrick again assumes that the workers are mere automata to be shifted at will, and that they are unresponsive to the sympathetic appeal of their fellow workers."

BRITISH INDIAN TROOPS WANT NATIVE OFFICERS

DELHI, India, March 27.—The Indianization of the Indian army, which has been one of the most disturbing questions in Indian politics during recent months, is being made a leading subject for discussion at the present session of the national legislature. The object sought by the Indians is to have only Indian officers for Indian troops. Agitation along this line has been increasing gradually for several years, and is expected to result in legislative action at an early date.

In a recent meeting of the legislative assembly, Mr. Yamin Khan moved to recommend to the governor-general-in-council that he get king's commissions for Indians by direct recruitment until all Indian regiments are wholly Indianized.

Mr. Yamin Khan, in urging his resolution, made it clear that he did not underestimate the services rendered by British officers in India. His position was that Indian soldiers should have an opening for rising to the highest ranks in the army, as is the case in other countries.

Lord Rawlinson, commander-in-chief of the Indian army, replying to Mr. Yamin Khan, said the government recognized that the demand for Indianization was inevitable, and was considering a scheme to bring it about. He held that there should be no violent change, and that the best time for transformation would be when the country is undisturbed by external or internal dangers, and gave as his opinion that there should be no wholesale Indianization before the success or failure of the change had been tested on a limited scale.

RICH PHOSPHATE BEDS

CASABLANCA, Morocco, March 27.—Rich and vast phosphate beds recently discovered in Morocco make that country a potential factor of economic importance, says C. E. Heathcote-Smith, British consul, in a report to the foreign office. Morocco is credited with the possession of deposits of phosphate rivaling in extent those of Florida, and in content those of any other country in the Eastern hemisphere.

The Oued Zem-Boulevard beds, 100 miles south of Casablanca, cover a district of some 50 miles in length and from 3 to 60 miles in breadth. They consist of horizontal layers several metres deep, lying practically on the surface, and of so high a percentage that Florida alone can show similarly rich deposits.

The beds other than at El Bouroudj also contain a high percentage of phosphates, varying from 63 to 72 per cent. It has been calculated that even if the beds were exploited at the rate of several millions of tons annually, centuries will elapse before their exhaustion.

FEWER MEN IN JAIL

LONDON, March 27.—England today is supporting fewer poor persons and fewer prisoners than at any time since 1911. Thirteen years ago there were 117 indigent persons to each 10,000 of the population living at the expense of the state, compared to 70 today. In 1911 the inmates of prisons and reformatories averaged 13.6 per 10,000 population as against 8.3 at the present time.

France Mourns

the fits of temper which were characteristic of her stage career. After a year or two at the convent, she conceived a passionate desire to become a nun. To this her mother regarded as a qualified opposition, and suggested a theatrical career instead. "She's too thin to be an actress," said her god-father. "Let her be a nun."

"I won't be an actress," little Sarah categorically exclaimed. "Rachet is an actress. She came to the convent and walked around the garden, then she had to sit down because she couldn't get her breath. They fetched her something to bring her around, but she was so pale, oh so pale. I was very sorry for her, and the nuns told me that what she was doing was killing her, for she was an actress, and so I won't be an actress, I won't."

First Appearance in 1862

But fate had determined otherwise, and at the age of 14 Bernhardt was sent to a conservatory. At the end of the first year she won second prize for tragedy. A subscription among the players at the Comedie Francaise enabled her to spend another year at the conservatory, and upon the completion of this she carried off second prize for comedy. Her first public appearance was at the Comedie Francaise in Aug., 1862. She took a minor part without any marked success. Five years later she emerged from obscurity with her first definite success as Cordelia in a French translation of "King Lear" at the Odeon, then as Queen in Victor Hugo's "Ruy Blas," and above all as Zerkow in Francis Coppée's "Le Passant," which she played in 1869.

Then came the Franco-Prussian war. Bernhardt increased her popularity by becoming a war nurse. In 1871 she was made a life member of the Comedie Francaise. She clashed repeatedly with M. Perrin, the manager, over the roles she should take, and once in a fit of pique fled from the theatre and decided to give up the stage. She plunged into sculpture. Her first piece, "After the Storm," finished some years later—won a place in the salon. She returned to M. Perrin only to break with him again, incurring a forfeit of 4000 pounds, which she paid.

Toured U. S. and Canada

She invaded England, receiving a tremendous ovation, then toured Denmark and Russia. Next she came to America, where her success was instantaneous. She toured the United States and Canada eight times in some 25 years, and appeared several times in the larger cities of South America. Breaking with the theatrical syndicates, which denied her the use of their theatres when she refused to come to their terms, she was compelled to appear on one of her American tours in tents, convention halls and armories. She vowed never to appear in a theatre again, but on subsequent visits she came to terms with the syndicates.

The great actress was a grandmother when she last appeared in America, and she had suffered amputation of her right leg. Upon her arrival in New York, Oct., 1916, it was evident to the group of friends and admirers who gathered to welcome her that she walked with extreme difficulty.

While playing in New England she contracted a severe cold which prompted her to take a trip south for her health. A few weeks later she underwent an operation for infection of the kidney, and although more than 70 years of age, she enjoyed complete recovery and remained in America for several months.

The injury to her knee which compelled the amputation of her leg in 1915 was attributed to many different causes. For years before the amputation the plays in which she appeared were altered to hide the fact that she was able to walk only with great difficulty. The operation was performed in Paris, and upon her recovery she reappeared on the stage to receive the greatest ovation of her career. Her manager announced that henceforth she would interpret only motionless roles.

Took Part in War Work

During the world war Bernhardt made several trips to the French front and gave a number of performances for the soldiers. This, she declared was the "incomparable event" of her life.

The memoirs of Bernhardt sedulously avoid any mention of her marital experience, and only in the middle of the bulky volume does she mention casually the existence of a son. One of her critics declared that "she never seemed to find the man who could master her."

Years ago a jealous rival of her

theatrical career published a satire entitled "The Story of Sarah Bernhardt," in which the love affairs of the actress, real and alleged, were shamelessly laid bare. Bernhardt resorted to the horse-whip to punish the author.

In 1863 the actress was married to Jacques Danala, a handsome Greek who had made a name in the theatrical world through his work in "The Ironmaster." He later took a minor part in one of her plays, but after a year on tour they separated. Later she took him back to her home and nursed him through a fatal stage of consumption.

Mme. Bernhardt's natural son, Maurice, showed no inclination to follow the profession of his mother, and after spending a short time in the French army, he married a Russian princess. She died bearing him a daughter, and Maurice Bernhardt took a Parisienne as his second wife. Many stories have been told of the fabulous sums accruing to the famous actress, especially in America, but authentic figures show that the gross receipts of each tour were in the neighborhood of $500,000, of which she usually received 50 per cent. A large part of her earnings was reinvested in theatrical enterprises, and at one time she owned or controlled half a dozen playhouses in Paris.

Appeared as "Hamlet"

Of the more than 200 parts Bernhardt essayed during her long stage career, perhaps the boldest experiment of all was the title role in a French production of Hamlet, which met with such unmistakable success that she was prompted to appear again as a man in "L'Aiglon." Her repertoire, in addition to the plays mentioned, included "Joan of Arc," "Fedora," "Adrienne Lecouvreur," "Sappho," "Theodora" and "Hernani." Her greatest successes, however, seemed to center in the Hugo and Sardou dramas, both tragedies and comedies. Many of these plays were written around her, and "fitted like a glove." A physical description of Bernhardt is difficult. In her youth she undoubtedly was what might be called beautiful, although from the French standpoint her slimness was against her. The greatest interest in the actress, aside from her art, was the tendency with which she clung to her girlish appearance. At 75 she might have passed for a woman of 30, so well had the features of her younger days been preserved.

Bernhardt seems to have had no illusions about her personal appearance. By themselves her features, high cheek bones, aquiline nose, and lips parted above an almost masculine chin—were not pleasing, but taken together they comprised the harmony of expression which gave her the title of "the divine Sarah." She admitted on one occasion that the effect of her long white face emerging from a long black sheath was by no means pleasant, "in this rig I look like an ant," she said.

Famous for Death Scenes

Bernhardt was the most famous for her death scenes, but it is doubtful if her breathless, spellbound audiences perhaps ever knew that many of them were played while the actress was suffering almost unbearable agonies from her various ailments, of which she never was heard to complain.

Patience seemed to have been one of Bernhardt's inborn characteristics. She would spend weeks and even months trying to correct technical faults in some member of her company, and then, if the subject failed to improve, she would explode and have nothing more to do with him either on or off the stage—not even speaking to him under any circumstances.

She always displayed a keen interest in the heart affairs of her troupe, and delighted in holding a "cupid's court." In her private ear, at which she would require aggrieved swains and the objects of their affections to submit their differences—Bernhardt to be the final arbiter.

Gambling—Was Poor Loser

Another of her pastimes was gambling, although she was a poor loser. She remained loyal and victorious as long as the game was running in her favor, but the moment her luck changed she became sullen and sarcastic. Her opponents, once they had lost to her, knew that it was gone for good, for she would throw down her cards and leave the game at the first sign of reverse.

A love for strange pets was another of Bernhardt's peculiarities. When she was a little girl she saved her money and bought a goat. She learned to love the animal so much that she wanted to become a goat-herd, and when her mother ridiculed the idea, during the Franco-Prussian war she raised geese for the soldiers, but grew to care so much for them that she refused to have them killed. Once in London she bought a lion-cub, a tiger and two chameleons at an auction sale. Another time she bought a baby elephant, but it grew itself out of a house. She tried for years to find a dwarf elephant, but never succeeded.

The conviviality of the dinner table was another of Bernhardt's delights. She particularly enjoyed a feast at midnight, after a performance, when the members of her company were present. She drank in moderation, and seldom touched anything but champagne. She never was known to smoke.

Two of the treasures in her Paris home invariably excited the interest of visitors. One was the skull given her by Victor Hugo on which he had written autographs, across to the actress, and the other was the coffin in which she occasionally slept. This strange bed, she explained, was padded with "memories of her dead life"—faded rose leaves and letters yellow with age.

She once expressed a wish that this coffin be her final resting place, and in 1922 the idea was elaborated upon when she bought for $100 from the French government a little granitic island in the Bay of Biscay, not far from her summer home at Belle Isle, where she planned to build a magnificent tomb crowned with a marble statue of herself, with arms outstretched as if beckoning to harassed fishermen imperilled by the storms.

Death had a weird fascination for Bernhardt, and for years she contemplated it with what appeared to be an uncanny humor. The wish she most often expressed was that she might die in the midst of her triumphs. "I shall play until death," she said, "and the death I hope for is the death Sir Henry Irving died." Her English contemporary died on tour, being stricken with apoplexy after a performance in 1905.

Toward the end of 1922, it was thought this desire might shorten her life considerably, while she was dangerously ill in her Paris home, she pitted her iron will against the physicians and prepared to resume her part in a new play by Sacha Guitry that she was playing in when stricken. She felt the end was near, her sick-room attendants said, and wanted to be acting a leading role when death rang down the curtain.

HUGE GAINS IN DOMESTIC INDUSTRIES

By NEA Service
WASHINGTON, March 26.—The lumber industry, taken as an index to activity in other lines of building materials, indicates the strong demand, exceeding production, which government authorities say has resulted in inflated prices. Figures for total production of softwood lumber, including pine, hemlock and redwood, for the 10 weeks of 1923 ending March 10, show a total cut of 2,040,451,896 feet.

In the same 10 weeks, however, shipments amounted to 2,494,592,265 feet and orders booked aggregated 2,609,371,081 feet. Orders, it will be noted, exceeded production by more than 600,000,000 feet.

As compared to the same period in 1922, production increased 237,056,527 feet, shipments climbed 802,955,457 feet, while orders were 955,128,023 above those for the same period last year.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

TALKS WHILE TUMOR IS CUT FROM BRAIN

NEW YORK, March 27.—A remarkable operation for brain tumor—during which the patient, Henry A. Brown of Newark, N. J., under local anesthesia only, discussed his feelings with doctors and nurses—was described by the staff of Beth Israel hospital yesterday.

The operation was performed on Feb. 27. The patient has recovered so completely that, except for the fact that his wife is herself in a hospital with a broken leg, he now would be at home under her care.

More than a year ago Brown was forced to leave his furniture shop when his right side became paralyzed. He complained of terrible headaches and sometimes was seized with epileptic fits. Then his memory failed him and he fell into a semi-stupor.

Finally he was taken to Beth Israel hospital for an operation. During a period of lucidity Brown was informed that if he wished to live he must submit, under local anesthesia, to a two-hour operation. Brown, who is 43, said he had become reconciled to the idea of death and that he would play his one chance.

He promised to co-operate with the surgeons. He was told to tell them whenever he felt the anesthesia wearing off and was warned that an unexpected movement on his part would mean his end.

Relaxing as directed, he was placed on the operating table, the skull trephined and the brain covering removed until the tumor was revealed. Dr. Emil Altman, hospital neurologist, who had diagnosed the case as one of a large tumor, saw revealed a tumor two inches by four, and three-quarters of an inch thick. Dr. K. Winfield May, the operating surgeon, continued steadily at his work, pausing only when the patient asked for more anesthesia. Finally the tumor was removed and bandages were applied tight.

Brown said the first result he noticed was cessation of the headaches. Then he regained his memory gradually. First came to him the name of his oldest child—then those of all his family. Eventually his whole past was restored to him.

Then his paralysis disappeared and now he can move about freely. He is convalescing at a home in White Plains, waiting for his wife to return from the hospital.

TROTTERS READY TO OPEN GRAND CIRCUIT

TOLEDO, March 27.—Not since Fort Miami track was opened with the world's fastest three-heat race, the pacing free-for-all won by Single G. have such promising attractions been offered as are found in the stake announcement of the Toledo Driving Club for this year's initial grand circuit meeting.

The first week of harness racing this year will be held July 4-9 inclusive, and the eight stakes call for a total prize list of $18,000. With the purse races filling out the program, the total money to be raced for will approximate $42,000.

There are 186 nominations for the eight stake events. The second meeting to be held in August will be featured by the Matron stake, awarded to Fort Miami track by the American Association of Trotting Horse Breeders. The local track outbid its grand circuit rivals for the third consecutive time to land the fourteenth renewal of the classic. Value of the stake will be about $5000. This year 65 colts and fillies are eligible.

One of the great races of the July meeting will be the Maumee stake for 2:03 trotters, for which Guy Worthy, 2:03 1/4; E. WILLARD TRAINING HARD FOR JOHNSON MATCH MGR. CHANCE NOT SATISFIED

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., March 27 (by the Associated Press).—John Willard, conditioning here for his bout with Floyd Johnson at New York May 2, today smiles at a day's drinkery. Although it was a painful and tedious job when he started two weeks ago to work back to the form he fondly hopes will bring him a return bout with Jack Dempsey who wrestled from him the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

Eight miles away over the hilly roads of this region is an unpopulated

Willard is willing, he said today, to meet "Pip," the South American, if necessary, to obtain a match with Dempsey.

Adventures of The Twins

A WISE OLD ROOSTER

THERE STOOD A PURPLE ROOSTER, LOOKING AT THEM THROUGH A LARGE PAIR OF SPECTACLES.

Nancy and Nick stood looking at Jack Straw's house spinning around on top of a steepie in Mix-up Land. That is the last place it had jumped to. "I know what I'll do," cried Nick. "I'll break another of the eggs that the Cut-Out Lady gave us." So he broke an egg. Instantly a ladder appeared and as quickly hopped away toward the steepie, landing first up obligingly against the side. "Hurry, Nancy. We'll climb it and get to Jack Straw's house," said Nick, starting to run. "I suppose you know what you are doing, but I'd be careful if I were you," said a voice. There stood a purple rooster, looking at them through a large pair of spectacles. "Why?" asked Nancy. "Because if Jack Straw sees you and turns his magic ring, the ladder will tumble about your ears and then where will you be?"

SUNSET AT SEA

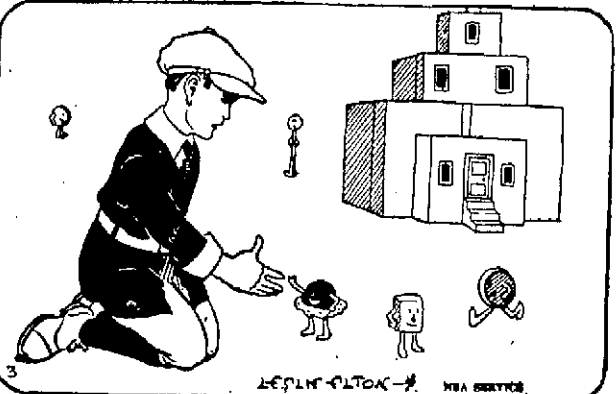

Jack Daw in Candy Land. Chapter 5

Jack then noticed that here and there were tiny homes made out of candy boxes. Caramel explained that every piece of candy lived in these little homes so they would get used to being in a candy box. "You see," said Caramel, "later on they all move into big candy boxes and go away."

"Is that how I happened to find you in my box of candy?" asked Jack. "Certainly," replied Caramel. "I was packed in that box and would still be there if you hadn't let me out." Then a little pink piece of candy ran up. Caramel introduced it to Jack. "This is little Miss Bonbon," said he.

Jack got down on his knees and shook hands with Miss Bonbon. And, just at that moment, another sweetmeat came running up. "I'd like to meet you too," it shouted. So Miss Bonbon said, "This is Peppy. He's really a chocolate peppermint, but we call him Peppy for short." (Continued.)

the streets one sees familiar American signs like "Israel Jones, Tailor," "Samuel Levy, Stationer," "Isaac Bachs, Pawnbroker," "Joseph Kahn, Butcher," etc.

Jaffa is now a regular port of call for American torpedo destroyers in the Mediterranean waters. But the exposed rocks and dangerous submerged reefs frequently force the commanders to put in at the more sheltered port of Haifa, 100 miles north. Almost any day the stores of Jaffa may be seen full of American Jack-Tars purchasing souvenirs of the Holy Land, religious articles, or some of the famous Jaffa oranges or Jordan almonds.

An excellent stone road built by the Turks and improved by the British expeditionary forces leads through the historic hills of Judea to Jerusalem. The American sailors if their parties are permitted, usually make up parties and go to Jerusalem and Bethlehem in automobiles. The railroad connecting Jaffa and Jerusalem is little used by visitors, for the 40-mile trip can be made much more comfortably, faster and cheaper by motor car. Thousands of light American-made cars have been brought to the larger cities, and one might almost imagine himself to be in Detroit or Indianapolis.

Along the plains of Sharon and through the hills of Judea are scattering British concentration camps, with wooden crosses as a memorial of the great war. Green cactus bushes and the bright yellow of orange groves relieve the monotony of the bare landscape. At long intervals agricultural colonies founded by American Jews are springing into life. The homes are of rough-hewn stone and rarely have windows. Arab policemen, under British tutelage, guard the route through the lonely, uninhabited regions.

Jaffa is the center of Palestine commerce, just as it was in the days of King Solomon, who brought the giant cedars here with which to build his famous temple. Owing to the shallow, wind-swept harbor, ships are forced to anchor nearly a mile off-shore. Five hundred American tourists traveled recently to land here from a big transatlantic liner. They were forced by the high winds to go north to Haifa. Jaffa is famous through the east for its sweet and luscious oranges, which rival those of California and Florida. The orange growing industry is one of the most important economic assets of the country. Most of the members of the large German colony that was here before the war have returned, and they are the only serious competitors of the Jewish fruit growers and city merchants.

Ribbon hats are popular and are not difficult to construct at home if one has plenty of patience and a little skill. Usually the ribbon is finished with a pleat or a fancy edge and has sometimes a tinsel effect or a double face.

LABOR SHORTAGE THIS U. S. SAILORS THROUGH SUMMER PREDICTED STORES OF BUSY JAFFA

BOSTON, March 27.—An acute shortage of several classes of artisans in the building trades in some New England cities this summer was forecast in a survey of industrial conditions made public yesterday by Charles D. Brown of Gloucester, chief of the department of labor in New England. Employment in this section increased in February instead of showing the usual falling off due to inclement weather, according to his report.

"The broadening of industry throughout this section evidenced during the month of February has had a most satisfactory effect on unemployment," Mr. Brown said. "February, which usually shows decreased employment on account of inclement weather conditions, which affect all outside activities, has this time shown an increase of labor added to payrolls over the month of January. In a survey of industrial conditions throughout this district, it was particularly interesting to note that practically all building tradesmen were employed, with, in some cases, shortages of certain of these workers existing. Contemplated extension of already huge building operations will employ all of these artisans and thus develop new shortages in some cities during the summer months."

"The following cities showed a decrease in unemployment for the month of February as compared with January: Manchester, N. H., Roston, Worcester, Bridgewater, Providence, New Bedford, Springfield and Lawrence."

"The following cities showed an increase in unemployment for the month of February as compared with January: Lowell, Fall River and Brockton."

JAFFA, Palestine, March 26. (By the Associated Press).—Jaffa, famous as the refuge of Jonah before he was swallowed by the whale, is assuming the aspect of an American city. Large numbers of Jews from the United States have come here and established stores, schools, cinemas and synagogues on the American plan. American newspapers and magazines of the current month are on sale, and small manufactured articles with the stamp "Made in the U. S. A." are plentiful and reasonably moderate in price.

Many patriotic and devout Jews, seeking the homeland and religious shrine of their fathers, are here to spend the rest of their years in quiet and retirement. Others have set up in business with money made in America. Along

List of Designers in Sun's
Novel Feature

More Than 1500 Designs Received by Polly Proctor in
Hat Contest

Miss Catherine Quinn, 16 Stanley street, Centralville, Lowell, wins the beautiful $20 hat prize in The Sun's
"Easter Bonnet" contest that closed
Saturday, March 24.

More than 1500 designs were received by Polly Proctor, in charge of the millinery contest. Pictures and coupons fairly flooded The Sun mails as a result of the great interest aroused by the novel contest for the prize—Easter millinery of personal selection and design.

Miss Quinn's design was selected from the mass of splendid rival entries, because of the simple design
presented, accurate detailed description and its strict conformity to the rules of the special committee of
judges, Miss Grace Burns, advertising manager of the Sun, and Mrs. J. J.
Jordan, Hartford, well known
Lowell milliner.

Many of the coupons were well
written and contained novel ideas in
hat designing and trimming.

The prize winner, in the opinion of
the judges, who were unanimous in selecting the Quinn entry, was most remarkable for its quality of texture,
shape and design, enforced by a clear-
cut description that accompanied the
filling of the drawing made out with intimate detail and showing artistic values not always possessed by contestants in prize contests of this sort.

The hat to be selected by the win-
she may wear it on Easter Sunday.
It will be something worth owning,
too, for the selection is to be made by the person carrying off the prize
award.

The Sun thanks its readers for taking so much interest in the Easter hat contest. It has caused much friendly rivalry and stimulated real interest in Lowell's popular spring millinery stores. It has also encouraged creative talent in hat design and creation and shows clearly that though the whims of modern femininity change
with the seasons, they always follow
the better paths in genuine styles,
colors, materials, shapes and values.

LOCAL ELKS AT CHELSEA

Lowell Lodge, B.P.O.E., En-
tertains Disabled Veterans
at Naval Hospital

Cheery greetings and mementoes of the spring-time season mellowed by hallowed memories of former days and associations cherished with staunch fidelity by brothers of fraternal faiths
and callings, were showered in rare
abundance upon more than 500 disabled World War veterans at the United States Naval Hospital in Chelsea, yesterday, under the auspices of Lowell Lodge of Elks, who journeyed in a body to the great rehabilitation
quarters to distribute comforts, delicacies of the season and bountiful entertainment to the veterans who served
their country in time of need.

The Lowell lodge members lived up to their splendid reputation by furnishing
one of the best entertainments ever

JOHN T. DURKIN,
Master of Ceremonies

provided for the soldier boys at the Chelsea institution. It was the happiest day of the season in all the wards and halls, and the Lowell fraternal visitors enjoyed the visit just as much as the boys who fought the good
fight and lived to tell the tale.

Among the notables who made the trip to Chelsea and took infinite pleasure in sharing in all the entertainment arrangements and program, was Mayor John J. Donovan.

Exalted Ruler John T. Durkin was
master of ceremonies and presided
over the numerous features of attractive interest for the veterans with his usual excellent ability.

The program was under the direction of James E. Donnelly, the affair
having been arranged by Lowell Lodge
No. 87, B.P.O.E. Automobiles were used to convey the entire party from Lowell to the veterans' quarters, and the trip was made without untoward incident.

The descent of the battalions of Lowell Elks, ladies and official guests
headed by Mayor Donovan, on the Chelsea institution, delighted the veterans, who had the happiest day they can remember when the Elks marched into the building and extended formal greetings. The hospital "rounds" were made, and the 500 boys provided with cigarettes and chewing gum, among other personal gifts that pleased the veterans immensely.

The visitors were prepared to put
on an excellent entertainment and arrangements were quickly provided for the concert and other numbers. Minor Doyle's orchestra was there in full musical strength, playing old and new airs and offering the usual repertoire
of the season's very latest and catchiest selections with lively jazz for good measure.

The Codman Trio—Messrs. Maguire, Deirnan and Couture—also gave a delightful entertainment, presenting songs with real melody that bright-
ened the hearts and faces of the disabled veterans who listened to the splendid offerings raptly.

The list of entertainers was a long
one and all played important parts in entertaining the Chelsea hospital inmates: Frank Marshall, Charles J.
Keyes, Edward P. Slattery, Walter
Brown, Paul Angelo, John J. McArdle,
Frank McArthur, William McGrath, Edward Donohoe, Tommy Fall, Kid Hooker, Benny Nelson, Happy Conlon, Mrs. Alice J. McLaughlin, Mrs. Alice
Dion Angelo, Mrs. Nora Regan Long-
tin, Miss Bertha Dion, Miss Florence
Hague, Miss Frances Tighe, Miss Lillian Powers and Miss Cella Crowe.

The following members of the Lowell lodge provided automobiles for carrying the entertainers:
Hon. John J. Donovan, P. J. Grafton, William Keleher, George Perrault, M.
W. Mulcahy, John Skeehan, Louis Lord,
John J. Healey, Harry Sullivan, William H. Mahan, Frank Mallory, Edward F. Slattery, John Moynihan, Ralph J. Harvey, Geo. H. Tora, Richard T. Robinson, past exalted ruler,
Daniel Martin and Wilfred Boulger.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Lincoln Tucker, president of Jamaica Plain and Miss Elizabeth Tyler Carter of this city were married recently at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Edward J. Scott, at Roading. The ceremony was attended by several relatives and friends from this city. The couple will make their

Merrimack River is Receding—High Water Registered in the Concord

Less water flowing over the dam today.

The big rocks below the Pawtucket
dam told the story first this morning,
speaking of water height in the vicinity of the falls where the measuring instruments hang.

Much lower water was in order this morning, when at 9 a. m., the boards
showed only 4.4 depth over the cap of the big dam. Yesterday the depth
was 5 feet and one inch at noon-time.
No indications were apparent that high water would follow tonight or even tomorrow.

The river is practically clear of ice,
heavy ice as far up as Tyngham places beyond Tyngham, the ice has broken up into shabby pieces and is moving down the river in sectional quantities, bringing no "jams" and
causing no higher water at any point
within the vicinity of Lowell.

Today the damage caused by the heavy ice that tore away dashboards and bent the holding irons, is more noticeable with the water between 6
and 7 inches lower over the dam. At one place the water appeared so low
this morning that the big rocks that had been covered by the surging water
of several days ago, were standing
stark naked again in the bed of the stream. The torrent is moving more
swiftly than usual, according to "shore observers," but that is due to the force of the waters above.

Considerable heavy ice remains massed about the dam gatehouse and refuses to break up or melt. Last night the masonry was 16 above at the dam
and many broken pieces of thick ice remained rigidly frozen together this

NEW YORK, March 27. The police
today arrested five more men in connection with the $25,000 jewel robbery
at David Gumbiner's Broadway store
yesterday, making 10 arrests in all.
The police believe they have broken
up the gang which has specialized in robbing jewelry stores by smashing
show windows.

CAR SHOP WORKERS MEET LIQUOR CASES.

Big Mass Meeting Last Evening—Amicable Settlement of Strike is Intimated

Local car shop workers affiliated with the Federated crafts held a rousing mass meeting last evening in Odd Fellows hall, Middlesex street, every seat in the theatre auditorium being taken and many standing during the presentation of the special program by the crafts' officials and invited guests.

Among the speakers were Thomas Golding, vice president of the local federation, and Frank Jennings, executive officer of the International Association of Machinists.

It was announced that information of great importance regarding relations between the car shop workers now on strike and the executives of the Boston & Maine railroad may be expected today. The local federation officials stated today that this information would soon be broadcast and the people who have suffered from railroad train delays and other traffic inconveniences in the past, will be very glad to hear the news.

At this time, officers of the federated local told The Sun, it is not deemed advisable to explain the status of the matter under consideration, for they say that it would be assuming too much authority over the officers of the system federation to present to the public any intimation of what is under way in the matter of an amicable settlement to all parties concerned. The matter being brought to a head, the local officers say, will affect more than 1000 men, including mechanics, apprentices, helpers and car shop laborers.

Representatives of contract shops in Burlington where numerous broken-down locomotives are now being repaired for the Boston & Maine railroad, were in Lowell Monday, according to reports made at last night's meeting.
The union representatives were endeavoring to hire local valve-bottlers among the local car shop crafts and offering them as high as $55 a week, but were unable to obtain any workmen here, the local strikers say.

Vice President Golding said today that after nine months of strike troubles, it and M. officials are now trying to get out just what kind of mechanic they have obtained. Officials are now traveling from point to point, questioning non-union employees regarding work they are trying to perform under instructions of assistant foremen. Mr. Golding informed the meeting last evening, that if the New York Central obtains control of the Boston & Maine lines, the public knows what will take place in adjusting wage and working agreements with local car shop workers now on strike.

Tonight the following fraternal organizations have delegates appointed to meet the executive board of the car shop crafts at headquarters in Odd fellows building: Eagles, South End club, C.M.A.C., Y.M.C.A., Broadway and Mathews. Representatives of the federation of churches in New England have already held conferences with executives of the shop crafts in Boston and are now planning to meet the officials of the railroad in order to bring about a settlement of the shops strike.

Winners in numerous contests recently conducted by the local federated workers, were announced today, as follows:

R. Maher, 18 Lawson street, diamond ring; W. Pearson, 42 Fruit street, toilet set; A. McCosker, 9 Webster street, smoking set; A. Vallancourt, 93 Jewett
street, shoes; J. Ernest, Providence, R.
I., $10 gold piece.

BROKE JAIL, KIDNAPPED R. R. MAN AND ESCAPED

ATLANTA, Ga., March 27.—Two prisoners confined in the hospital at
the federal prison near here, saved
their way to freedom early today,
stopped at the home of W. H. Edwards, a railroad man in Lakewood heights and when he refused to aid
in their escape, kidnapped him,
brought him on a street car to the city, where they left the car and
made good their escape.

COLDEST MARCH 27 SINCE 1896

BURLINGTON, Vt., March 27.—With the local action of the United States weather bureau reporting a temperature of one below zero at 6 o'clock this morning, Burlington experienced the coldest March 27 since 1896. In that year the reading was 6 below. The most recent approach to the present cold wave was in 1906, when the thermometer was at zero.

Prospects are for continued cold throughout tonight and Wednesday, with little immediate relief in sight.
